LYNCH LAND IN MENASHA MAY BLOCK BRIDGE

Acquisition Of Right-of-way
For Cherry-st Road Threatens Difficulties

A strip of land, 600 feet long by 100 feet wide, necessary for opening a street from the southern terminus of the proposed Cherry-st bridge to the Menasha-rd presents a problem which might give the city of Appleton serious concern if it determines to go ahead with the construction of the bridge. This short strip, less than one-fifth of the distance between the river edge and Menasha-rd, has greater possibilities for serious difficulty than all the rest of the required right-of-way.

The reason for this difficulty is that this strip of land, required for opening a street from the Cherry-st bridge to the Menasha-rd, lies entirely within the city of Appleton and in Winnebago-co. It is owned by the Lynch family who operate a farm, most of which is north of the Menasha-rd, just outside of Appleton's city limits. The east and west boundary line between Outagamie and Winnebago-co is part of their "line fence."

THREE POSSIBLE METHODS

The distance from the south end of the proposed bridge to Menasha-rd is 65 of a mile, or 3,312 feet. It is said that the right-of-way for a street, 100 feet wide, from the end of the bridge to the north boundary of the Lynch farm, which is the south boundary of Outagamie-co and also the south boundary of Appleton, can be or has been obtained, either by gift, purchase or condemnation proceedings. The Lynch family is not disposed to give the city free passage across its farm and the city of Appleton cannot condemn the property because it is outside of the city.

Acquisition of a right-of-way through the Lynch property is possible in three ways. They are by gift, by purchase and by condemnation through the cooperation of the town of Menasha or the board of supervisors of Winnebago-co. The first is highly improbable and the second and third methods promise to be very expensive.

PASSAGE THROUGH ORCHARD

The proposed right-of-way for the street, as surveyed for the city, will run along the line between Outagamie and Winnebago-co, 50 feet on each side of the line. If this street is carried straight through the Lynch property, the east edge of the street will not be more than 15 feet from the silo which stands on the west side of the Lynch farm. It will go directly through a cornfield and a hog pen on the farm and through an orchard of young apple trees. This orchard contains approximately 96 trees and not less than 80 of them would have to be moved to make room for the street. The hog pen and the cornfield are old buildings and represent only a few dollars but John Lynch, one of the proprietors of the farm, places considerable value on the orchard.

The proposed street also would divide his farm so that only the farm house, barn, silo and other farm buildings would remain on one side.

WOMAN TELLS SHE WAS KIDNAPED 10 YEARS AGO

Bruce, Wis.—Relatives in Bruce are interested in the outcome of the claim made by Mrs. Clyde Taylor, that she is the former Catherine Winters who was kidnapped from New Castle, Ind., about ten years ago. According to Mrs. Winters, who is a cousin of the girl, Miss Winters was kidnapped and despite a nationwide search no trace was found of her. Recently, however, this woman who lives in Ohio, has put forth the claim that she is the missing girl. Mrs. Taylor telegraphed to Dr. Winters and sent her photo. An investigation is being made.

Patrolman Ford Weeps At Trial; Pair Paroled

Samuel Ford, former patrolman of the Appleton police force, and his stepfather, N. J. Lorge, who were charged jointly with burglary following their admitted theft of several bags of flour from the Lethen Grain company early Sunday morning, have been placed upon their good behavior.

Attorney T. H. Ryan, appearing in their behalf Thursday afternoon in municipal court, pleaded for clemency. Judge John Botteneck, who was called in after an affidavit of prejudice had been filed against Judge A. M. Spencer, placed both offenders under the state board of control, Ford for four years, and Lorge for two years.

Ford, a big, strapping man, broke down several times during his testimony and wept like a baby. All the time he was in the county jail he was exceedingly despondent and would not eat. His stepfather seemed to take matters more coolly.

The former officer said he was the

Noted Doctors Will Aid Girl With 114 Fever

By Associated Press

Escanaba, Mich.—Evelyn Lyons, 20, whose case of 114 degrees of temperature for the past 19 days has resulted in a flood of telegrams and letters asking for details and extending consolation from all parts of the United States sat up in her chair Friday morning with a smile of expectancy on her face. The fever has not abated the slightest, but Evelyn roared over news reports which informed her of aid from several of the nation's most eminent physicians and fever specialists.

"I hope that they come here," the girl said, "as I know I will get well. Then they will believe that I have the fever which the doctors have recorded."

According to several telegrams said to have come from Evanston and Chicago, two or three of Chicago's most celebrated physicians will arrive here Friday to render aid to the girl.

According to Harry Defnet's report Friday morning the girl spent a fairly restless night and her appetite is excellent. The girl is still restless and desires to get out of doors to cool off. Her pulse beats about 120, the same reading retained since her sickness began.

8 HOUR DAY IS FACING BITTER SENATE FIGHT

Tucker Bill Given Final Approval
In Assembly Friday Morning

By Associated Press

Madison — The assembly Friday morning gave the Tucker eight hour bill final passage by a vote of 47 to 30. The Tucker bill declares that the basic eight hour day shall be the public policy in Wisconsin.

The measure now goes to the senate where it will encounter strenuous opposition. In the assembly vote of 47 to 30, there are a number of progressive Republican farmers who aligned themselves with the opposition. Should farmer members of the senate take the same stand the proposal would be defeated.

The Tucker bill imposes heavy penalties upon employers who work their laborers longer than the statutory limitation that would be imposed. It permits overtime work upon payment for time and one half, under certain conditions. As passed in the assembly all farm workers and employees in industries employing less than six persons are excluded from its provision. This would cut out a large part of the workmen in the state.

Battle 5 Hours To Save Man In Vault

By Associated Press

Templeton, N. J.—Charles DiGiaccoma, 19, was in a serious condition in a hospital Friday as the result of his experience Thursday night when he was accidentally locked in a concrete and steel vault by his pal, William Templeton, a fellow worker in the Peoples Park bank.

DiGiaccoma was rescued after five hours of feverish unceasing toil by a relay of men who battered, burned and drilled their way to him while crowds waited outside for word of his fate.

The first judgment of the attending physicians was that DiGiaccoma would recover.

Templeton, to whom he directed his first semi-conscious inquiries after the rescue and who had collapsed when he realized what he inadvertently had done, also was under the care of physicians.

DiGiaccoma and Templeton were flung away the books of the bank into the vault after the bank closed. Every night the two hurried to finish that the winner might stand outside and tease his fellow partner with threats of slamming the safe door.

CITY WELFARE WORKERS WANT HEALTH NURSE

Petition, Signed By Dozens Of Organizations, Is Going To Council

A resolution petitioning the mayor and common council to engage a community nurse whose duty it shall be to cooperate with the city health and poor departments and with the Welfare council and signed by representatives of more than 100 local organizations was unanimously adopted at a meeting of the Welfare council at the vocational school Thursday afternoon.

The need of a nurse was emphasized by all present and several suggested the appointment of two. The need is so urgent that representatives of some of the organizations said if it were necessary to dispense with the services of either the health or the city physician they felt the former was a greater necessity. While in favor of a city nurse Capt. George Merkel, assistant health officer, said the duties of the city physician were equally important.

PREVENT CONTAGION

"In order to cope with epidemics," Capt. Merkel said, the city needs several nurses, one of whom should devote her entire attention to contagious diseases. Through the efforts of a nurse, contagion could be kept from spreading, he said. He related a recent incident in Appleton where one child who did not take the disease himself communicated it to 70 persons.

Mrs. Gustave Keller, president of the Welfare council, presided. In reading the minutes of the previous meeting, Miss Ann Heintz, secretary, called attention to several needy families that had been assisted by the council. The chairman said the council was organized a year ago and with the cooperation of other societies was making good progress. She said she felt the need of a community nurse and that the Welfare council feels a nurse should be provided by the city to be under the city health department and a committee of the Welfare council and should work together.

"We have called this meeting this afternoon of representatives of all the organizations of the city," said Mrs. Keller, "and would like an expression from each person as to having a nurse provided by the city."

The chairman called on representatives of the various societies who were strongly in favor of engaging a nurse and gave their reasons therefor. More than a dozen societies were represented by men who joined with the ladies in their efforts to secure one.

George P. McGilgan complimented the women on the work they are doing, but said the work is not complete without a city nurse. One of the most charitable things that can be done is to provide a nurse for people.

HARDING TABOOS OFFICE SEEKERS

Wants Real Rest—President
Gets Smile Out Of Weather Report

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

Copyright, 1923 by the Post Pub. Co., Melbourne, Fla.—President Harding is having a good time but if things should grow monotonous all he has to do to make him glad while he is here is to read the front pages of Florida newspapers where dispatches from New York and New England points tell of storms and blizzards are displayed under two column heads as of equal importance with developments in the Ruhr.

In this land of straw hats and bathing suits, with the temperature often rising to 70 and 80 at midday, they drive even the slightest worries away by the Pollyanna method. For absolute detachment, President Harding couldn't have selected a better place. The little towns along Indian river inlet where the Harding household drifts along, are sparsely populated. Grapefruit and orange groves are the only visible reminders of industry. It is the kind of atmosphere in which a man can do a good many hours of uninterrupted thinking every day and this is bound to be of as much value as the health giving qualities of golf and houseboating.

OFFICE SEEKERS IN WAY

Mr. Harding's opportunities for thinking out problems have been in recent weeks disturbed by something which he considers the most perplexing and embarrassing phase of the presidency, namely the making of appointments to office. Picking men for important tasks in the business world is acknowledged to be one of the keys to the financial success of many an enterprise but selecting men for public office has that beat a thousand ways in the opinion of Mr. Harding.

In the first place congress usually limits the salary that can be paid and expects the government to get its money out of the pockets of taxpayers whose earning capacity is four times that much in the business world. The demands of politics have been particularly trying to Mr. Harding. The defeat at the autumn elections of many members of congress made it politically necessary to take care of "lame ducks." Mr. Harding was a lame duck once himself and knows how it feels. He has been brought up in the atmosphere of practical politics and realizes that without party workers little can be hoped for by a candidate. Nineteen twenty four is not far away and even if Mr. Harding were not to be the candidate, he has such an enduring interest in the maintenance of party cohesion that he would be found caring for the "lame ducks" just the same. The trouble is that however much one sympathizes with these "lame ducks" they do not always have the ability to fill the positions in which special training is required.

Joint Finance Committee Faced With Task Of Drawing Up New Program

BLAINE STAND IS CAUSE

Seek Provisions That Will Suit
Socialists' And Balty
Senators

Madison — The joint finance committee of the legislature is now faced with the task of drawing a new tax bill that will be a composite of the Dahl and Severson bills, with provisions inclusive enough to command the united support of administration members of both the senate and assembly. At present the two tax measures before the legislature are admittedly dying.

The change that caused the Dahl and Severson measures to be put in the background, temporarily at least, is the stand taken by Governor Blaine who will ask the finance committee to bring in a new bill, standing as a sort of compromise. Opposition of senators to repeal of the personal property effect, has just about put an end to the general income tax proposal sponsored by Speaker Dahl. Opposition of Socialists and certain other senators in the Severson bill, has ended hope for that measure.

BLAINE MAKES PROPOSAL

In order to insure passage of a tax bill of some sort, Governor Blaine is proposing to the finance committee that it prepare a bill of its own. Senator Henry Huber, its chairman, announced Friday that his committee was confronted with the whole tax problem now. In addition to its other duties

"The new proposal that comes before the legislature will contain the personal property effect. It is believed that the committee will defer to the wishes of Governor Blaine and investigate the proposed repeal of it, offset during the next two weeks, before acting on it.

RATES MUST BE REVISED

Rates of the present bill will be completely revised in order to redistribute the burden. There is some talk of a bill which will not materially change the tax situation, but serve to make minor alterations without seriously affecting any class of persons in the state.

The finance committee expects to be able to commence consideration of the tax problem by the first week in April. Before that time Governor Blaine will make known his views so that the committee will have a tangible idea to work on when it commences to draft a new measure.

MUSIC SUPERVISOR PLAN IS REFERRED TO SCHOOL BOARDS

School Boards And Principals
Hold Joint Meeting At High School

Engagement of a supervisor of music for the city and coordination of music work in all the schools was discussed for several hours at a meeting of the four district school boards and principals of the schools in the dining room of the high school Thursday evening. The plan did not meet with the sympathy of all the district representatives and it was decided to refer the matter back to each individual school board for a definite action.

John Hantschel was elected president of the joint school board organization. Other officers are Carl Seeger, vice president and W. H. Kreiss, treasurer. The school boards hold joint meetings four times each year. Thursday night's meeting followed a dinner prepared by senior girls in the home economics department of the high school but the expenses were defrayed by the Third district.

The meeting was one of the longest on record, starting at 6:30 and continuing until nearly midnight. Discussion of the music supervisor plan required most of the evening.

The board members also talked over teachers' salaries but no decision was reached. A committee consisting of the district treasurers was instructed to investigate salaries in Appleton and in other cities, particularly of the Fox River valley, and report back to their boards.

ALLEN IS MAN WITH HEART FOR MASSES

Remarkable Views Of Kansas
Governor Will Be Explained
In Talk Here

A public spirited man with his heart in humanitarian movements is Governor Henry J. Allen of Kansas, who will speak Tuesday evening, March 13, in Lawrence Memorial chapel. It will be the last number of the Community Lecture and Artist series.

Under his five years of presidency the Kansas state board of charities was splendidly effective. His humanitarian point of view contributed to the prominence of his newspaper, the Wichita (Kan.) Daily Beacon. He organized the "home communication service" of the Red Cross in France during the war. One of Governor Allen's great qualities is a remarkable understanding of individuals, their problems and reactions.

Today in his duties as governor of Kansas, and in his much talked of book, "The Parity of the Third Part" on the industrial court for the settlement of labor disputes, and in every public utterance, it is evident Governor Allen is a man of power and eminence. He is one who looks upon people as human beings to be considered individually and not in masses. It is a viewpoint that makes his ideas strictly practical and decidedly to the point.

J. G. Schroeder has gone to Chicago to attend the Willard national service stations convention.

who cannot take care of themselves, he declared.

Postmaster W. H. Zuehlke said if the city could not have a nurse deemed more important to have a nurse than a city physician. He called attention to the economic practice of insurance companies furnishing fire insurance service to their policy holders.

Bad Luck and the Devil Pursued Him

"I don't think any one has had more bad luck and sickness than I have. In 1905 I had two ribs, an arm and collar bone broken in a railroad accident. Then I had pneumonia. After recovering I crossed the pasture when a bull chased me, tossed me over the fence and broke my right leg. In 1910 I had typhoid fever, since then severe stomach and liver trouble, which no medicine or doctor touched until two years ago I got a bottle of May's Wonderful Remedy, which proved the first ray of light in thirteen years. It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. One dose will convince or money refunded. For sale at all drug stores.

Groundhog Theory Went True To Form This Year

One glance at the report of February weather will quickly dispell any doubt as to the correctness of the groundhog, when he came out of his hole on Feb. 2, saw his shadow and would prepare for six more weeks of winter, was proven absolutely true.

Feb. 2 the sun shown just long enough for Mr. Groundhog to see his shadow. Beginning the next night and day this locality had the worst snow and wind storm of the winter; also the coldest weather. The temperature remained cold the entire month with 13 days, almost half a month, of below-zero weather.

The lowest temperature was 19 below on the fourth, closely followed by 17 and 13 below on the third and fifteenth respectively. The mean maximum temperature for the month was 20.5 degrees and the mean minimum 11.9 degrees above zero. This latter mark is 5.3 degrees below normal for February and proves February of this year to be the fourth coldest February since 1887.

In 1904 occurred the coldest February since 1887 when the mercury hovered about the 7-above mark for an average. In 1917 the mean was 8 above, in 1899 and 1914, 11 above, in 1899, and equal in 1905 and 1913.

Last year's mean was 4 degrees warmer. The highest temperature of the month was 41 degrees above and occurred on the twenty-fifth. The greatest daily range was 31 degrees on Feb. 3 when the mercury went from 14 above to 17 below.

There was .91 inches of precipitation during February, .69 inches below normal for the month which is 1.60 inches.

This precipitation occurred in the form of snow, and amounted to 11.1 inches of snow. The greatest precipitation in 24 hours was .13 and happened on the twelfth. February precipitation last year was far in excess of this year.

The prevailing direction of the wind was southwest, total movement 8,270 miles with an average velocity of 12.3 miles and a maximum velocity for five minutes of 52 miles, coming from the southwest on the fourteenth.

During the month there were 7 clear days, 13 partly cloudy, and 8 cloudy.

"Grand To Have Your Health"

says Mrs. Jenny Evans, of Detroit, Mich. Few of us appreciate our health until we lose it. Mrs. Evans worked in a factory, but owing to a weakness, and pains in her back she was forced to give up work. She says: "A friend recommended Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and it made me well. It is grand to have your health to feel well at the time and to go around like other women without that awful torture of female troubles."

Women who are suffering from such troubles, should remember that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the tried and true medicine, now recognized everywhere as the standard remedy for female ills.

COMPLEXITIES OF POLITICAL PROBLEMS

Quite a momentous lecture was delivered by the respected British statesman, Viscount Grey, in Newcastle. His topic was "The Appeal to Public Opinion," and his sayings were so profound, so fair, so practical and so convincing as to be worthy of repetition, for the common weal, in every land which adequately values representative government.

Democratic representative government might go down temporarily in Europe, he said, under the stress of unusual circumstances, but it would be restored. He professed to harbor the same faith in representative government that he always had cherished. However, it was amazing to what extent people questioned the inherent good of republicanism.

Viscount Grey calmly discussed a few other weighty subjects. He could not agree with those who believed that the contention between capital and labor could be mollified or stopped by nationalization. Evidently, he discountenances attempts to settle capital labor questions by legislation. Labor, he said, should not look to government for security against employment, but should solve the problem itself, by insurance or some other means. Labor should not expect parliament to give it a share in industry, or profits from industry, or to give it part in industrial management. Wage questions, he said, should not be decided by the state. The employer and the employed should decide all of these great issues. Do you think that labor dislikes this kind of philosophizing? Do you think that capital dislikes it? That the people disapprove of it? It is just exactly what capital and labor desire to hear. Labor is respectable and independent, as capital is. Both wish to retain liberty and self-respect.

Impreciable ideas gain popularity by their apparent merit, and they are accepted casually for a while because they seem being novel, to show the way to complete and satisfactory adjustment. But a little thought and experience prove their deficiency. It is not only in connection with capital-labor issues that there is a strong drift away from republicanism. In agricultural matters the drift is surprisingly discouraging.

There are two causes of the tendency to look to the state for help. One is the lack of knowledge and experience of the general public, as well as the principals. The other is the habit acquired during the war to rely on the government for everything. We must make no mistake about conditions. The most serious problem in republics is the preservation of republicanism. Impartial, thoughtful inquiries, like Viscount Grey's are needed to light the way.

ARE YOU ALERT?

A magician would find it easier to fool Einstein than to deceive Einstein's eight-year-old son. So claims Arthur Buckley, official of the Society of American Magicians. It is common knowledge in the show business, that a stage wizard is most nervous doing his tricks before an audience containing a great many children. The grown-ups are fooled easily. But chances are that the shrill voice of some youngster in the rear of the house will pipe out: "I seen how he done it." Children are much more alert than their elders. One reason is because they find everything in life new and interesting and are constantly watching for another bit of knowledge. Interest keeps the brain geared up to a high, keen pitch. As we get older, we observe that life is an endless repetition, the same old stuff over and over with only an occasional surprise. Naturally, we fall into the habit of not looking for something new. In turn, this gradually dulls our perceptions, slows down our ability to observe quickly. So the stage magician finds it easy to hoax us.

Magician Buckley, as quoted, conveys the idea that, the wiser a man is, the easier to fool him. For instance, a very simple trick will baffle a profound brain, while a man of only average intelligence is apt to "catch on." The psychology of this is that one of the characteristics of deep thinking is a tendency to concentrate entirely on important subjects. Which explains why a person with a brilliant intellect often is unable to master card games, trivialities which the deep thinker subconsciously is averse to concentrating on. The "heavy thinker," apparently interested in the stage magician and trying to solve his trick, has about 95 per cent of his brain power far away, browsing unconsciously on important matters. The man of lesser intelligence is not in a semi-trance or hypnotic state of interest in important matters so he is able to rally his concentration 100 per cent on the magician's tricks.

This delve into psychology raises the interesting suggestion that alertness is not necessarily a sign of brain power. On the other hand, it may indicate intelligence only average, or below. The absent-minded professor is the subject of many jokes. He, deeply concentrated on things that really count, is far from alert. Often he has to have questions repeated two or three times before he "gets them." But bring up one of the important subjects that really interest him, and you find him as alert as a hair-trigger. It is a queer machine, that gray brain inside our skulls.

RAISING THE REDISCOUNT RATE

Announcement is made by Federal Reserve banks of several districts of increase of the rediscount rate. To most of us this simply means that the reserve banks, which deal exclusively with banks, have raised the interest charge on loans. The significance is, however, greater. Every borrower or prospective borrower is affected in a practical way by this action. Banks lend money to their customers, and then, in turn, arrange loans of their own with the Federal Reserve banks. The scheme enables general commercial expansion by increasing the volume of credit.

When the reserve banks raise the rediscount rate, their object is to check or control the use of credit. As an interest-rate advance by a regular bank tends to curtail borrowing by business concerns of all kinds as well as individuals, so elevation of the rediscount rate has the effect of restraining the banks from borrowing.

The rediscount rate is the best indicator of commercial tendencies, and it is probably the most reliable instrumentality for holding business within reasonable bounds. Severe reactions come from excessive prosperity, the most conspicuous feature of which is undue utilization of credit. The rediscount rate rises with growth of trade until it reaches a maximum point which stops resort to credit.

Priests are increasing. Costs will go up. The rediscount rate is advancing. The volume of business is widening. When a certain point is reached in expansion credit restrictions will check the movement and keep prices and volume stable.

TODAY'S POEM

By Berton Bralley

ONCE ON A TIME

The men of benignity, greatness and dignity,
Captains of commerce and trade;
Whose mighty ability, strength and virility
Made us a little afraid;
Who work so aggressively, talk so impressively—
Lose just a bit of their thrill
If we can just realize these we idealize
Once were exceedingly small!

They don't seem so awfully lofty and vast,
If we can just vision the days of the past.
When John Rockefeller
Was learning his spell,
And Henry Ford played with his rattle;
When Elbert H. Gary
Was chuckling of merry
And innocent infantile prattle;
When William J. Bryan
Would silently lie on
The elderdown quilt of his crib:
When Campers wore rompers,
And Schwab wore a bib!

When Lodge, the proud senator, vexed his progenitor,
Wasn't the slipper applied?
Before Mr. Daugherty reached his majority,
Of Taft knew so tall and so wide,
They acted mischievously, suffering grievously
Doubtless, for all that they did.
However, we group our men—common or super-men—
Each of them once was a kid.
They don't seem so dazingly great and sublime,
If we can just vision that, "Once on a time"

When Harding was crooning,
Or Wilson was sleeping,
Wrapped up in an infantile dress;
When Morgan, the banker,
With babyish rancor
Would howl all the day, more or less,
When Denby and Hoover
Would slyly maneuver
For jam or cookies ad lib—
When Campers wore rompers,
And Schwab wore a bib!

STRENGTH

A popular movie actor who recently succumbed after an illness of a month in a sanatorium, had been considered physically strong. "Hypostatic congestion of the lungs" was the immediate cause of death. That is a passive accumulation of blood in the lower part or dependent portion of the chest, as commonly met in various conditions associated with great enfeeblement or prostration and watchfully guarded against by the physician whenever a very feeble person must be confined to bed. It is essentially a mechanical stagnation of blood in the lower vessels; one preventive measure is the turning of the patient from time to time so that he shall not lie too long on the back. Although purely mechanical or passive, such hypostatic congestion obviously interferes with the normal oxygenation of the region involved, simply because fresh blood with its supply of oxygen cannot be delivered to the congested tissues; this state of impaired local nutrition or of local suffocation if you prefer, favors infection by the ubiquitous pneumococcus.

The pneumococcus, which is the germ usually responsible for pneumonia, bronchitis and so called "slight colds" (though in some cases other germs do cause these diseases) is in a certain sense, if I may say so without irreverence, the very antithesis of God. God is everywhere, even though it be hard to believe He is present in some places, called Godless places. The pneumococcus seems to be nearly everywhere where the benighted laity believes one is likely to catch—a disease which the pneumococcus causes, yet out in the cold and wet the changeable weather, damp wind and chilling draft, the pneumococcus has never yet been observed. "Tubercle" for really this germ is one of the faintest of microscopic creatures and just can't survive a degree of "exposure" which even Granny Grumble would snap her fingers at.

A reader asks me to suggest some "exercises to make one feel strong enough to walk." I have been sick a little over a year, "he goes on," and I can walk only a few rods when I begin to grow faint and weak and

This query well illustrates a popular fallacy which is fostered and exploited by innumerable nefarious quacks who get under the untutored layman's skin through the agency of the "physical culture." Physical education bears about the same relation to "physical culture" that physical culture bears to astrology. "Physical culture," propagates the false notion that muscular strength confers health or prevents or cures disease.

Muscular strength and physical strength and physical health should be clearly distinguished in the best interest of health and efficiency. A certain amount of exercise every day is indeed an aid in maintaining health but even a little exercise may prove a dangerous thing for an invalid. Alas, many an invalid has sacrificed his chance of recovery by indulging in a little daily exercise without his physician's advice.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Fighting With Death

We have just moved into a small apartment having a kitchen 8 by 9 feet, with a gas range having four burners, oven and broiler. The range has no pipe connection with chimney. There is no window. But a door opening to the hall from the kitchen. Risk if I remain over door, and window in next room is kept open while stove is used—Mrs. W. C. C.

Answer—Perhaps not if the hall is well ventilated but there is grave risk to life in using such a stove with windows and doors closed. No stove should be without flue connection.

Warts

Cause and cure warts.
Answer—Cause problematical, perhaps specific infection. Often disappear spontaneously—hence reputation of "1001 cures." One or two warts may be painted daily with w. k. corn remedy—solution 30 grains salicylic acid in half ounce flexible collodion. Growth of warts and skin about them may be given prolonged soap and water scrubbing to limit of endurance, rinsed and dried thoroughly, painted once with tincture of iodine, every three or four days, for three or four times. Warts about face or neck should be removed only by a physician. X-ray often best remedy for warts.

LOOKING BACKWARD

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

Friday, March 11, 1898

Attorney Garrett Thom of Clintonville was in Appleton on business.

Miss Arkie Parish returned from a visit with friends at Oconto.

Mrs. George Downer was the guest of her mother, Mrs. P. M. Brooks, at Seymour.

Miss Elsie Hammel entertained a group of friends in honor of the anniversary of her birthday.

William Krueger of the Atlas Paper Company, who fractured his left ankle four weeks previous, was just beginning to get out of doors.

Philip Abner, telegraph operator at Appleton Junction, left for Kodiak, Alaska, with a party of 25 operators from various parts of the state.

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Morrill entertained 50 friends at a dinner party in honor of the twenty-fifth anniversary of their wedding.

The fire department was called to the home of Mrs. Kenyon on Richmond-st., where a chimney burned out.

The new metallic telephone line between Appleton and Kaukauna was completed and was in daily use.

For several days T. Spencer, who had been secretary of Outagamie County Pioneer association for nearly 25 years, was calling on old residents of the city for the purpose of getting them to register their names in a book provided by the association for that purpose.

TEN YEARS AGO

Friday, March 7, 1913

Henry A. Leuders of Dorchester was visiting Appleton friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Ira Pooler returned to their home at Shiocton after a two weeks visit with Appleton relatives.

Frank Santo left for San Diego, Calif., where he expected to remain for six months. He was to be joined later by Mrs. Santo and her mother, Mrs. Barbara Jacobson.

Mrs. S. P. Shattuck of Neenah entertained a group of 26 young ladies of Appleton at a dinner party the previous Wednesday evening.

Miss Beattie Ullman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Ullman, made her initial bow to an Appleton audience as a concert singer at Peabody hall the evening previous.

Judge Thomas H. Ryan of the municipal court was to deliver an address before the Knights of Columbus of Stevens Point the following Tuesday evening. His subject was to be "The Perils of Childhood."

A barge loaded with dynamite destined for Panama, exploded in Cuxta Bay, near Baltimore, blowing up the British steamer Alumcline and the tug Atlantic. Seventy-five persons were reported dead.

It cost about $73,000 to make Woodrow Wilson president. The citizens inauguration committee spent close to $18,000 and the congressional committee nearly $25,000 all on incidentals.

Democrats Are Seeking Moses To Lead In 1924

BY HARRY HUNT

Washington—Wanted: A Moses to lead the Democrats out of the Direful Dilemma that threatens in 1924.

For Democratic leaders—not the presidential aspirants—but the boys who shovel coal and oil the gears to keep the old machine running—foresee, this far in advance of the national convention, a deadlock because which the three-day jam in 1920 will seem insignificant.

"What's bothering me" says one of the men at the party organization center, "is whether we'll be able to nominate a candidate at all."

A two-thirds vote is required at a Democratic convention to nominate.

Three opposing groups at the convention each will control, with the overlapping votes that will shift from one to another, more than one-third of the ballots.

These are:

1: Woodrow Wilson group.

2: The William Jennings Bryan group, including the radical dyes.

3: The wets.

To find a platform and candidate a two-thirds vote of these groups can agree on is the problem.

The delegates will have to decide between these alternatives:

1: Being "radical" and "dry" to catch the west.

2: Being "conservative" and "wet" to win the east.

The south, it is agreed, will have returned to Democratic "normalcy" and needn't be worried about.

The man to suit these specifications, it is admitted, doesn't now loom above the horizon. He may appear before June, 1924, but it is considered much more likely that he won't get the spot until after the Wilson-Bryan-Smith-McAdoo-Ford forces have struggled to exhaustion.

Among the "willing" candidates who hope to benefit by a deadlock and are ready to be compromised on, are Gerard, New York; Owen, Oklahoma; Ralston, Indiana, and Pomfene, Ohio.

Woodrow Wilson has the organization managers guessing. Some believe he expects his physical condition will permit him to enter the lists himself. If not, in what direction will he throw his support?

All this suspense and uncertainty is beginning already to weigh heavily upon the party managers. It promises to become a mighty burden before June, 1924.

Highest Wage Is Earned Wage

(B. C. Forbes in Forbes Magazine)

Now, just what is the real truth about the amount of wages, the highest possible wages that can be paid?

We have been hearing and reading a great deal lately about the "living wage," the "savings wage," the "minimum wage," and other kinds of wages.

When you go down to the very bottom of the whole matter you discover a very simple and very complete answer to the question of what is the highest wage that can be paid.

What is the very highest wage that can be paid?

Snow Crystal Fans Have Fine Pastime

(Copyright, 1922, NEA Service.)

(From The New York Sun.)

Of all the passions that palpitate the human heart, perhaps the most blameless and pleasing is the passion for making pictures of snow crystals. And this winter is keeping the gentle brotherhood and sisterhood of the snow crystal fans in a flutter of delight.

Unlike some of the lesser passions, the snow crystal passion continually finds new and perfect forms on which to gratify its esthetic appetite. Persons who have been making sketches or microphotographs of snow crystals for years are able to discover fresh treasures of beauty and symmetry with every snowfall.

Except for the mysterious law of their crystallization, whereby they are always hexagonal—always six sided or six pointed—their variety is infinite. They shun the kaleidoscope with the surprises they scatter from the jewel shop of Dame Nature.

There was a Norwegian artist who became infatuated with snow crystals to such an extent that he voyaged to the arctic shipping in a mental capacity with an expedition, for the express purpose of finding and making drawings of snow crystals in a climate where they would not melt while his pencil was tracing their fairylike perfections, and for years he remained in perfect contentment in this frozen wilds, finding new and ever new varieties unfolded to his fascinated gaze.

Not thus is it, they say, with victims of the baser passions. The glutton comes to an end of new dishes and sauces and strives by incessant repetition and immoderate indulgence to recall and prolong his first delights, such as they were. And it's very much the same, they say, with the victims of other passions, notably the consumers of fiery liquids, some of whom lived in this country until the Eighteenth amendment reformed their habits.

But the snow crystal fans need no stimulus or excess to renew their joy. Each snowstorm of winter brings them a pure and esthetic orgy.

The wage that is earned. The earned wage.

Take the man who is making more money than any other human being in the world today, Henry Ford. He has been making probably between $50,000,000 and $75,000,000 a year for some time. Yet it is not generally admitted that Ford honestly earns all that he gets.

Suppose one of Ford's keen-brained employees saw how one dollar could be saved in the making of the Ford car without reducing the usefulness of the car. His idea, if put into practice, would save Ford more than a million dollars in one year. Would not such a man be entitled to receive a very generous income from Ford? Would he not have actually earned big pay?

Employers can afford to pay the earned wage.

They cannot afford to pay more. They couldn't pay more—and go on paying more—no matter how eager they were to do so.

Just like ourselves, employers cannot pay out more than they take in. Before cash can be put into wage envelopes it must first be drawn in by the wage-payer.

How much can be paid out is regulated by how much is pulled in.

A company's income is governed mainly by its workers' output.

Schmidt's Spring Hats from Trimble just whistled in!

The crates are off—the boxes are opened—and behold a display of hats that every man of every set and salary in Outagamie County should see now—today—this week.

Men; this show will make you boys again—the new styles will tickle your vanity and you can go as far as you like in colors—you can't tucker us out in variety!

Let us impress this;

If this city has ever seen such a display of hats—it has been in a millinery store—not in a clothing store!

A. M.

A. The usage of tolling a bell while the soul is said to be passing from the earth is at least as old in England as the days of the Venerable Bede, 673-735, who tells us that at the death of Saint Hilda, one of the nuns at a distant convent thought she heard the sound of the passing-bell calling her and her companions to prayer.

CAPITOL JOKES

BY JOHN N. GARNER
U. S. Representative from Texas,
Fifteenth District.

THE cowboy had come into town for a good time. He had $300 or so, the fruit of many months' hard work on the range. It was in the days before Volstead had done his work, so of course the cattle puncher headed for the nearest saloon.

It was a tough place, and into his customer's very first drink the bartender poured knockout drops.

The next morning the cowboy awoke with a headache, sick, dizzy and disgusted. He had no memory of any fun at all. His money had been taken from him, his horse had been stolen and even his gun was missing.

So, sore and disgruntled, the unfortunate individual started to walk 25 miles back to the ranch, cursing fate. A little way out of town he saw another man on the trail, ahead of him. The stranger bent down to lace his shoe.

With a growl, the cowboy kicked him, snarling: "Dam you, you're always lacing your shoe in front of me."

Costs Only $2 To Kill Woman In Indo-China

Special To Post-Crescent
Fort Worth — Indo-China is all wrought up over a new law making it cost $2 to kill a woman.

Until lately, according to F. M. Stalling, who lives in the French Indo-Chinese city of Saigon, but is visiting his parents at his old home here, a person of any standing could kill a woman, accidentally or otherwise, and "get by" with it. But now, the $2 law is harshly enforced against all alike. The men say it is an outrage.

Two dollars may seem like a small sum here, Mr. Stalling says, but in Indo-China, money is scarce, incomes are low and the rate is very burdensome.

If the thing goes no further, according to some Indo-Chinese, perhaps not great harm will be done, but certain families are awaiting a ready for an advance to $10, which actually is as much as it costs to kill a man—only an ordinary laborer, to be sure, but a man at that, and these are women the radicals are trying to make it so expensive to kill that maybe it will be prohibitive soon, except for the very rich.

Mr. Stalling had an experience himself just before he left Saigon. He was motoring with a friend and they ran over a woman, who died of her injuries, and the friend was fined $2, which he paid. The court officials apologized. They said they realized such things are bound to happen to anybody who's trying to get through a crowded street at 60 miles an hour, and what did it matter anyway?

What the Indo Chinese are most afraid of is that the women will get to considering themselves important and it will spoil them, like the women in the United States. Already when the king wants a new wife and sends his agent to get one, refusals are being met with.

INVITE PYTHIANS TO M. E. SERVICE SUNDAY

DISCUSS LEAGUE IN DEBATE TONIGHT

When the Lawrence negative debating team meets the affirmative team from Hamline college Friday evening it will be another opportunity for the local debaters to prove arguments on "Resolved: That the United States shall enter the league of nations." The debate will begin at 8 o'clock in the assembly room of Main hall.

A number of Appleton persons were present at the debate last week when Lawrence defeated Ripon. The program is open to the public and it will be an excellent opportunity for opponents and supporters to hear problems discussed relative to the league of nations.

Being Wife Of President Is No Soft Job

One of our leading diagnosticians said recently that Jack Dempsey could not stand being the first lady of the nation.

Laugh!
But he meant it.
Most of us think of the wife of the President as a woman of leisure. "An exalted position," a Boston lady described it "A dressed up job," a Colorado voter called it.

In reality it is one of the most exacting and difficult positions in all of our public life. It wrecked Mrs. McKinley's health; it was believed to have shortened the days of the first Mrs. Wilson. Colonel Roosevelt and that remarkable daughter of his, Alice Longworth, were able to relieve Mrs. Roosevelt a little, or she too, would have been broken. Mrs. Harding, a few months since, came within a hair's breadth of death as the result of having tried to meet the demands made upon her.

The wife of the President of the United States never makes calls, but from morning to night she is expected to receive, sometimes small groups, frequently large delegations. She must entertain all the officials of the Government, the Army, the Navy and all the foreign diplomats and distinguished visitors.

Then there are the public receptions, when all of America that wants to call may go to the White House. And between times there are school children, booksellers, conventions of this and that and the other thing—the list of a year is pages and pages long. Is it not too much?—From the Delinquent.

Live Right To Be Beautiful, Actress Says

Gladys Cooper is heralded as the most beautiful actress in England. I believe she is.

I saw her clad in a simple blue silk nightgown, her blond hair, with its natural wave, hanging loose about her exquisitely modeled shoulders. She was propped up in bed, for I called early in the morning.

Yet, without makeup or artifice, she was one of the most perfect things I've ever seen.

FIRST HOURS HARDEST
The first hours are the hardest, as every woman knows. One who is beautiful before breakfast need not worry about the rest of the day. Her secrets? Hard work, country life, a youthful spirit!

She has played continuously in London for three years without a vacation, but she always lives in the country, is devoted to riding and hiking in the English fog, to rose gardens and to home cooking.

"But why," she asks, "do you Americans concern yourselves so entirely with beauty of face? I find a woman's style, chic, personality, vivacity, the things she has cultivated for herself, infinitely more interesting."

"A beautiful figure is more to be desired than a perfect profile."

"In France they judge a woman by her appearance from the tips of her toes to the top of her head. I do that, instinctively. Faces don't interest me, aside from what they contribute to the whole effect."

Miss Cooper holds that plain women can cultivate beauty.
"I mean," she explains "that beauty is merely the emphasizing of the distinctive things about one's self."

"To cultivate beauty, I should say, cultivate yourself and your mentality. Then progress along your own particular line. Distinction is bound to come."

Youngsters To Find Delight In Chalk Talks

An unusually delightful program is in store for Appleton children, their parents and teachers when Miss Margaret Gardner of Chicago Art Institute gives her chalk talk at 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon in Appleton theater. Miss Gardner gives a variety of programs and the one Saturday will be tales such as the "Just So Stories" by Kipling. One of Miss Gardner's programs is "Chicago Sketches" and still another which she frequently gives includes the reading of modern poems which she illustrates.

Miss M. S. Vickery of the Chicago Latin school says: She has given more pleasure than any other entertainer we have had during the year. Not only to the pupils but to the parents and faculty as well. Her "magic pencil" has the witchery of dreams and it is a wonderful experience to see forests grow, gardens bloom and cities take shape before one's eyes.

PLAN TO CELEBRATE PATIENT'S BIRTHDAYS

Mrs. Fox as hostess was assisted by Mrs. Jane Beach, Mrs. George Loos and Mrs. Frankie Sherry. A number of articles were collected at the meeting for a baby the club is mothering.

PERMANENT RELIEF FROM PYORRHEA

"Pyro form"—the Result of Years of Research

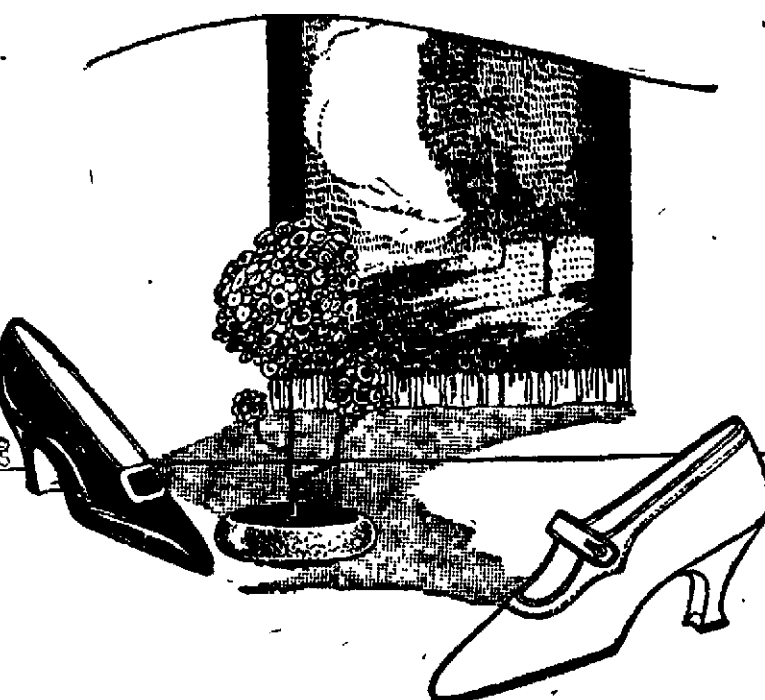

While dental surgeons and chemists have experimented for years to discover a remedy for Pyorrhea, only recently has any real progress been made in combating the disease. A new remedy known as "Pyro form" was perfected only a short time ago by the Pyro form Company, San Bernardino, California, and has already given effective results in hundreds of cases, many of which were considered incurable. Users of the preparation claim that it eliminates all traces of Pyorrhea within a short time, and in addition, strengthens the gums and restores the teeth to a sound state.

Results have been so consistent that "Pyro form" is now sold on a positive money-back guarantee, so that people suffering with the disease risk nothing in trying this remedy. Price $3 per carton. It is on sale at the VOIGT DRUG CO. adv.

The Home Complete

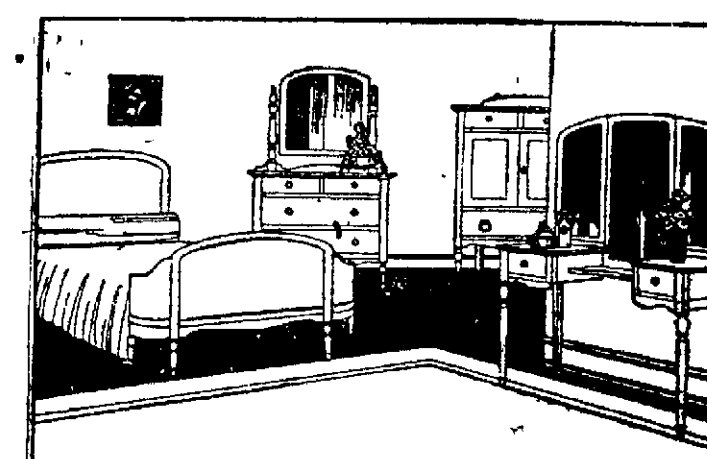

The great desire of young couples to have attractive and comfortable homes without a very large expenditure has prompted us to make a study of their problem which has resulted in "The Home Complete" idea, where we show what we think the most artistic and appropriate pieces for a small apartment. Below is just one suggestion of many we offer for a 4-room apartment.

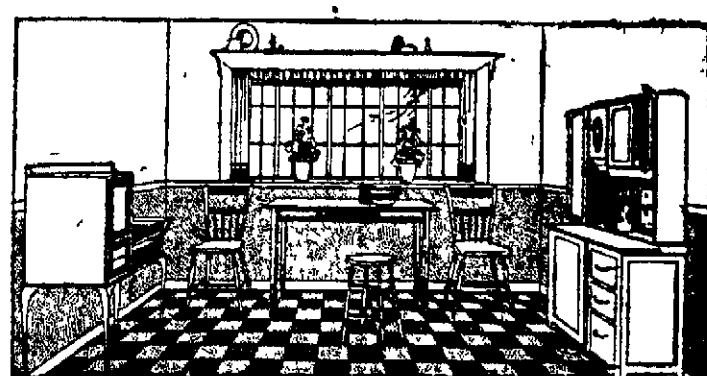

THE LIVING ROOM — Consists of an Over-stuffed Davenport and Arm Chair to match; a mahogany Library table, an odd Upholstered Chair; Bridge Lamp; Drapes and fine domestic Rug. Looks comfortable and inviting, doesn't it?

THE DINING ROOM — Is mahogany finish. A China Cabinet; Buffet; Server; Table, Arm Chair and 5 Side Chairs complete this Suite. The Rug is a monotone grey. The Drapes are of Chintz attractively patterned.

THE BEDROOM — A double Bed; Dresser; Chiffonrobe; Dressing Table and Chair, not shown completed; this very attractive suite in combination mahogany. The Rug is rose color.

THE KITCHEN — A golden oak Kitchen Cabinet; a white porcelain top table; two oak chairs; an oak stool; blue and white check Linoleum and Voile Curtains make this very neat looking kitchen.

SEYMOUR SEEKS LOCATION FOR NEW CITY CEMETERY

Committee Asks Public To Suggest Suitable Site For Burial Plot

Special to Post-Crescent
Seymour—George Drexler, William Beck and John Buckenham, a committee appointed by the chamber of commerce last fall, have been trying to secure options on land that would be suitable for a new cemetery for the city of Seymour. The present city cemetery cannot furnish desirable lots. The only factor that is preventing the arranging of a new cemetery is a suitable location near the city on a good highway. Mr. Drexler's plans are to have an eight or ten-acre plot with broad walks and room for planting of trees and shrubs. A sufficient amount would be set aside from sale of lots to take care of the upkeep of same permanently.

The committee is anxious to secure the help of anyone who can suggest desirable land.

MODERN LAWS NEEDED TO PREVENT BLINDNESS

By Associated Press
New York—The need for more modern legislation dealing with the prevention of blindness and the conservation of vision, and for a greater number of state and local organizations devoted to these causes, is emphasized in the annual report of Lewis H. Carris, field secretary of the National Committee for the Prevention of Blindness, made public at the headquarters of the committee in this city.

Mr. Carris' findings are based on a survey of the blindness situation in the eastern half of the United States conducted during the past year. Special attention was given to conditions in Indiana, Illinois, Kansas, Michigan, Minnesota, Oklahoma, Alabama, and New York, in which states the National Committee cooperated with local agencies in conducting educational campaigns.

MAKING CRUSHED BOWS

Crushed bows of wide soft ribbon are among the popular tridings for the summer season. To make a crushed bow, so beautiful in its appeal, wrap the ribbon around two sticks, or have someone hold their fingers twice as far apart as the desired length of the bow. Wrap around four times, if an eight-loop bow is to be used. Count each complete wrapping as two loops. Tie a temporary hold around the center; cut the ribbon leaving the ends the desired length. Then sew where the temporary tie is. Remove the tie and crush the loops down until the bow satisfies.

QUIT LOBBYING, BLAINE'S ORDERS TO STATE OFFICERS

Governor Says Officers Should Resign If They Don't Like Jobs

Madison—Gov. Blaine intends to run the administration's show while he is on the job as governor. He has authorized no state employee, titled or otherwise, to speak for him. He will insist that capitol employees attend strictly to their duties, and not lobby for or against bills in the legislature.

Gov. Blaine is said to have spoken in this frank vein to Charles D. Rosa, member of the state tax commission at $5,000 a year, in the executive office Wednesday night.

BLAINE HITS LOBBYING

News that Blaine and Rosa had gone into a serious discussion of lobbying by officials and public employees here became known on Thursday.

The exact words that passed between them are being held back. Gov. Blaine has declined to comment on the incident, and Rosa was diplomatically silent with respect to it on Thursday.

Rosa was instrumental in drawing the Dahl tax bill, which does not reflect the governor's real views on tax revision, and has been rather conspicuous around the legislature.

Speaking against lobbying by public employees, Gov. Blaine is said to have pressed the point that the way to fill a job is to remain on the job. There is one way out in his opinion for any official who feels that he has become too big for his position—resign and get a new one.

RUSS PEASANTS FRAME LAWS AMID SPLENDOR

By Associated Press
Moscow—Russia's Parliament of Workmen and Peasants, in their picturesque garb, have assembled in the great throne room of the czar's old palace, within the Kremlin, to discuss new laws designed to benefit the proletariat.

The legislation to be considered includes the labor code of land laws, civil laws, and laws providing for unified courts of justice, all of which require readjustment owing to the new economic policy.

The parliament, known officially as the All-Russian Central Committee, is the highest legislative body in Russia.

The throne-room, where more than 300 members from various parts of Russia have assembled, is virtually unchanged from the days of the reign of Emperor Nicholas except that the throne has been concealed by a while sounding board intended to improve the acoustics. Upon the walls, which are of light blue and gold, and upon the ten immense gilded pillars, still remain the arms of the imperial family, and from ten enormous chandeliers scores of the old imperial double eagles, still look down on the lawmakers, four of whom are women.

The reception hall of the empress, adjoining the throne room, is filled with telephones and noisy typewriters operated by short haired stenographers.

The room of St. George, of gold and white, the largest room in the Kremlin, with six chandeliers supporting more than 3000 incandescent lights, is being used as a smoking room by the peasant lawmakers.

Mr. Degal's father, Martin Degal, bought the farm in 1854, from a Mr. Williams who had homesteaded it, paying $10 an acre.

William Degal's mother, who has attained the age of 91 years, lives with him in the house to which she came as a bride nearly 70 years ago.

Part of the Degal farm has been platted into village lots. Three churches and a school, besides numerous residences, have been built on that part of the farm.

FIND RARE BONES IN U. S. BAD LANDS

Fragments Of Prehistoric Rodents And Reptiles Discovered In Nebraska

By Associated Press
New York—Fragmentary evidence of classified prehistoric rodents and reptiles has been found by Albert Thompson, paleontologist, in the badlands of Nebraska, where in former years research workers have uncovered the remains of mastodons, rhinoceroses, giant camels, alligators, dwarf horses and other queer beasts.

The bones of the strange animals were uncovered on a ranch in Sioux county while Mr. Thompson, who is a member of the paleontological research staff of the American Museum of Natural History, was searching for skeletons of three-toed dwarf horses.

Mr. Thompson began the study of paleontology while employed as a cowboy in the Dakota Bad Lands more than thirty years ago. He was especially interested in the remains of the three-toed horse and other pieces of beasts of the same family.

In the interest of this work he went to Nebraska early last summer. Aided by several students he began digging in a channel bed that appeared to be rich in bones of all sorts. He found bits of the dwarf horse, of the alligator and of other animals, and then he came upon pieces of skulls the character of which was new to him.

WORKS ALONE

He delved further in an effort to uncover complete skeletons. His student helpers returned to their schools and he kept on alone, but had no further success.

Bad weather finally set in and Mr. Thompson was compelled to abandon his work. He had, however, collected hundreds of bones and skulls of great research value. He plans to return to Sioux county next year and resume work in the channel bed.

"Western Nebraska undoubtedly is the richest field in America for this sort of work," said Mr. Thompson recently and we hope to make startling discoveries in the next two or three years. I shall return next summer and made an effort to find complete skeletons of the strange type of rodents and reptiles of which we have fragments."

MAIN HIGHWAYS ALL ARE OPENED TO AUTO TRAFFIC

Highway Crews Overcome Effects Of Last Week's Storm
By Hard Work

All main highways of the county are now open to motor traffic, it was announced by A. G. Brusewitz, highway commissioner. After the work of the county highway crews had been nullified by Sunday's snowstorm, their efforts were redoubled with the result that the roads to Black Creek, New London and Medina were soon reopened. The New London bus resumed operations for the first time since the Feb. 14 blizzard. Buses to Waupaca and Seymour, however, are still inactive.

Further proof that the New London road is passable, is the journey of Mr. and Mrs. Benedict San Francisco from Kalamazoo, Mich., to St. Paul. They arrived in Appleton in their Ford car Wednesday evening, having left Kalamazoo at 9 o'clock the previous morning and spent the night in Milwaukee. They inquired at the local highway office as to the condition of the roads beyond.

Traffic between Milwaukee and Green Bay is again becoming active. The road between Neenah and Oshkosh is perhaps the most inconvenient, due to high drifts in a number of places. At these points a narrow passage has been made allowing cars to pass one at a time. The road is open all the way to Oshkosh with these exceptions.

MAY SEE BY RADIO
Just as radio makes it possible for us to hear what ordinarily we could not, we may expect in time, not so far off, to see the "unseen."

This is no vague dream, because scientists have already perfected machines by which photographs can be transmitted by wireless. Experts of the United States Bureau of Standards have been working with others for some time on this kind of apparatus, and in a short while we may be entertained by the use of their combined inventions.

Radio movies will then be the order of the day. Movies that might be shown in several localities at the same time—simply by "tuning in" each local projector to the wave length of the movie transmitted. Talking movies, already fairly well developed, could then be applied with ease.

SEE WORLD EVENTS
But there is possibility of greater things even beyond the radio-talking movie. That is actual sight and hearing of a play or concert or lecture at long distance by radio!

The argument, by those who foresee this, is our sense of hearing is improved so remarkably by radio, why can't this science do likewise for our sense of vision? Before radio came we could hear only a limited distance, without use of direct lines to aid us. Now, simply by attaching a receiving instrument, we hear a long distance without any visible connecting link. The world of hearing is thus opened up to us by radio.

Why not sight the same way? We can see only a very short distance. Telescopes enable us to pick out otherwise invisible stars in the firmament. Now comes radio which enables us to see actual photographs that were taken miles away.

"INVISIBLE" NO LONGER

If radio can transmit photographs for us to see, it ought not to be too wild a dream to imagine sight by radio of actual objects far away. Then large vistas of actual happenings may open up to us—events which may be going on about us, but of which we know nothing because of our inability to see them.

What we might see by such a remarkable radio instrument might be the air itself—which now is invisible to our eyes—and the thousand and one kinds of gases, bacteria and other organisms floating about "unseen" in the atmosphere.

Sight of these invisible things may help toward development of our lives along more healthful lines.

GHEEN IS SPEAKER AT ADVERTISERS' MEETING

James E. Gheen, connected with the American City bureau, was the chief speaker at the weekly meeting of Appleton Advertising club at the Conway hotel Thursday noon. He discussed advertising the community.

No Weight To Argument Placing Easter April 8

Another argument squelched before it started. And on such a peaceful subject as Easter Sunday.

The question of whether April 1 is the correct day on which to celebrate Easter this year was raised in a press dispatch, which held that if astronomical and ecclesiastical authorities are correct in their deductions, April 8 should be Easter Sunday and not April 1 as on the 1923 calendar. The reason assigned was the fact that the Paschal full moon falls on April 1 and authorities of old declared that Easter comes on the Sunday following the full moon. The World Almanac states that if the full moon falls on Sunday, then Easter day is the next Sunday.

But there is no cause to worry. Easter bunnies and finery may make their debut on April 1 without feeling premature.

The ecclesiastical rule which governs the varying position of Easter, according to clergymen, is briefly this: Easter day is the first Sunday after the fourteenth day (not the full moon) of the calendar moon which happens on or next after March 21. This calendar moon, however, is not the moon of the astronomers, nor the mean moon of the astronomers, but an imaginary moon created for ecclesiastical convenience in advance of the real moon.

On the other hand, the Greek orthodox churches celebrate Easter on April 8 this year, the date on which it falls, according to their computing, which is done by the "unreformed" calendar. This is the result of an early difference on the observance of the Paschal feast which sprang up in the early days of the faith between the Christians of Jewish and Gentile descent. The latter adhered to the practice of keeping the fourteenth day of the moon which corresponds to that of the Jewish moon Nisan, and observing the feast regardless of the day of the week it fell on.

The Roman Christians on the other hand adopted the ordinary Gentile usage which placed the observance of the crucifixion always on Friday, with Easter falling on the following Sunday. For several hundred years there were discrepancies among the nations as to the date, on which they observed Easter. It was not until the year 689 that Archbishop Theodore succeeded in having the English speaking Christians adopt the Roman rule.

The churches of Russia and Greece and the Oriental churches generally have never conformed to this rule, but still observe Easter according to the unreformed calendar. Their Easter consequently is later than the Easter set by the western church. Very rarely the two coincide, the year 1865 having been one of the occasions.

These churches, however, have adopted the rule of having the crucifixion always fall on Friday with Easter on Sunday.

15 ANSWERS TO QUERIES WEEK'S WORK OF HASKIN

The report of Frederic J. Haskin, director of Appleton Post-Crescent information bureau of Washington, D. C., for the week ending Thursday, Feb. 22, showed he received 33 letters and answered 15 questions.

He received 19 coupons for modern homes; 1 for floor covering; 4 for rice; 2 for recipes; 1 for school lunch; 1 for child's health; and 1 for corn meal, a total of 29 for the week.

Twenty-nine miscellaneous bulletins were forwarded, making the grand total 73.

Meaning Of The Chamber Of Commerce

HOW IT IS FINANCED

The question today is: "How will the Appleton Chamber of Commerce be financed?"

Answer: Membership dues. These will remain at $25 a year. The chamber will also ask for pledges on a three-year basis, with a rule that death, removal from the city, or bankruptcy shall automatically cancel a membership.

Members of the committee say that 55 per cent of the successful civic-commercial organizations of the country maintain the $25 rate. The actual cost of operating a modern-type chamber of commerce is between $15 and $18 a year a member, that statement being based on an inquiry among some hundreds of organizations.

"If the Appleton Chamber of Commerce is to do things the citizens want done, it must have on adequate income," says the argument for the $25 rate for the organization. "Two thousand memberships at $25 each will provide the least amount the chamber should have for rent, light, heat, printing, stationery, expenses of committees, clerical and stenographic help and the salaries of its full time secretary and his assistants, the only paid officials."

"Every corporation and firm and every business and professional man and woman who becomes a member of the chamber should regard the dues as property chargeable to 'overhead,' the legitimate running expenses of their business or office. Civic-commercial organization dues should be looked upon just as that portion of the taxes with which a city safeguards property, because

BANK CLERK MUST PAY FOR OVERDRAFT LAXITY

Bank employees who permit savings accounts to be overdrawn must be compelled to refund the overdrawn amount, Banking Commissioner Marshall Cousins notified the banks of the state today.

"In a few instances in the state such overdraws have occurred," Cousins said in a statement listing 50 banks of the state as having no overdrafts.

The total amount of overdrafts in the three month period ending last Dec. 29, the date of the last bank call "showed a very healthy increase," Cousins said.

State bank deposits increased $8,000,000, savings accounts $6,942,157 and checking accounts dropped $3,000,000.

without such provision property values would disappear."

The plural membership will be continued. "There are eligible to membership in the chamber of commerce a considerable number of concerns and some individuals whose interests in and responsibilities to the community are so large that they should give more to the support of the chamber than those of smaller means."

BOOST BAKER FOR NATIONAL C. OF C. DEPARTMENT POST

Appleton Chamber Indorses Paper Association Secretary For Job

Appleton Chamber of Commerce has indorsed the nomination of Max Babb of the Allis-Chalmers Co., as its choice for director from the Sixth district of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, which convenes May 8 to 10, and has since been partially successful in boosting the nomination of Secretary Hugh P. Baker of the American Tulp and Paper association for nomination as department head of the national resources production division.

Dr. Baker created an excellent impression when he spoke in Appleton and at Neenah last week, and the chamber took steps toward electing him to the office for which it considers him so well adapted. To make the nomination valid, the chamber had to receive the indorsements of five presidents of chambers of commerce affiliated with the national chamber. These were the Appleton, Wausau, Oshkosh, West Bend and Fond du Lac chambers.

NOMINATION RUSHED

The nomination of Dr. Baker was sent out Wednesday evening by special delivery in order that it may reach Washington by March 8, the last date for receiving nominations. It now remains for the paper manufacturers of the Fox River valley and the country, the councillor and the delegate to the convention of the national chamber to support him.

The nominee is 45 years old, was born in Wisconsin, graduated from the Michigan College of Agriculture, the Yale school of Forestry, and the University at Munich, Germany. He saw service for 10 years in the United States forestry service, was dean of agriculture and forestry at the New York state school of forestry, member of the Reserve Officers Training corps at Fort Sheridan and received the degree of doctor of economics from Munich.

ON THE SCREEN

"A QUESTION OF HONOR" BIG IN ENTERTAINMENT

Fans who like mountain stories, outdoor scenery and red-blooded women have a treat coming to them in "A Question of Honor," the First National attraction starring Anita Stewart which will open a two day engagement at the Elite theatre today.

The captivating star has the role of Anne Wilmot, a leading society debutante who is brought to the west as a bait for a stalwart engineer whom Anne's uncle hopes to bend to his use. In the wilderness of the High Sierras Anne discovers her uncle's scheme. A huge dam has been built for irrigation purposes and the financial interests, determined to obtain the property for a railroad right of way, plot to destroy the dam in order to make the settlers sell their land.

How the girl's decision to test her own mettle is worked out in the combat between the settlers and the New York interests is visualized in a drama as gripping as any that has come to the screen. Beautiful exteriors combine with night battles and thrills to make the picture one of unusual interest.

"CATCH MY SMOKE" COMING TO ELITE

A treat is in store for the amusement lovers of Appleton. For on next Sunday and Monday there will be shown for a 2 day run, the William Fox production of "Catch My Smoke." Tom Mix' latest starring vehicle which has been the talk wherever it has been exhibited. Not only does the story appear interesting but the acting, direction and photography are of an exceptionally high calibre, according to the producer. There are also deft touches of comedy throughout.

SHOULD GUARD AGAINST "OIL CIRCLE" SCHEMES

"Oil Circles" with headquarters in Oklahoma, which have been urging Wisconsin people in advertisements to invest their money, were warned again this week by Banking Commissioner Marshal Cousins in a statement to bankers of the state.

"Banks should caution their clients against investing in the offerings of this company," Cousins said. "The state securities commission has not authorized the offerings of this syndicate in Wisconsin."

"The advertisement inserted in Wisconsin papers, however, asks those who are inclined to part with their money to send their remittances through the mails."

"No one should for one moment consider an investment of this type," the commission says.

Then Along Came Spring!

Stratford Clothes

Bill Nye, the famous humorist, once remarked that "Winter often lingered in the lap of Spring until it occasioned a great deal of comment."

Not so this year. There is a touch of Spring in the air already, the herald of warm days to come. Back of the white garment of Winter we can feel and see the beauty and verdure of the new season peeping through.

Seasonable clothes are in order and this is the time to freshen up your wardrobe.

The sprightly Spring Models of Stratford Clothes are here in all the advanced smartness of Style for which this make is justly famous. Just a step ahead of anything else in Metropolitan taste; the same Quality that has always marked these clothes as distinctive, the same time-honored dependability for wear.

Skill is the sculptor who has carved the fame of Stratford Clothes and placed them on a pedestal above and apart from even the better grade of clothes for Young Men.

Come in and inspect these individually different Spring offerings in "the Style Clothes of America." You are not obligated to buy unless your better judgement dictates. It surely will!

TRAGEDY STALKS IN NEW YORK SUBWAY

Strangers Easily Becomes Separated—One Found Dead
Of Fright

Special To Post-Crescent.
New York.—The clam of a subway door, the surge of a crowd and thousands of strangers, carried into the maelstrom of New York's great catacombs of commerce, the subways, are swept along to disappointments, misfortune, and often death.

They form the bulk of the cases reported of the Missing Persons Bureau of the Police Department. Few get public notice until they reach a tragic ending.

Not long ago Joseph Gallo, of Fairfax, S. D., came East with his wife. They were to sail for their old home in Czechoslovakia to retire. Passage was engaged. They started from their hotel for the pier.

The subway was crowded. Gallo pushed his way through the crowds. His wife was close behind. But before she could board the train, the guard had slammed the door, separating husband and wife.

She boarded the next train. It was the wrong one. Speaking little English she couldn't make herself understood. She was lost among millions. Two days later the frantic husband found her in the morgue. She had died of fright.

A few weeks later Hyman Levine, a Newark (N. J.) grocer, came to the dock to meet his wife and son, coming from Russia to join him. Again a subway door closed. Another family was separated.

But this time fortune threw into the path of the panic-stricken woman a man who understood her language and who wasn't too busy to stop.

He escorted the lost mother and son to a police station. There the husband later found them. A repetition of the Gallo tragedy had been avoided.

After two years' hard work, two brothers decided to go back to Italy and spend Christmas with their old mother. They spent all their savings for passage on the Majestic on her last trip of the year. But they got lost in the subway and reached the pier in time to see the boat leaving. They could take no other boat. All their dreams were shattered.

According to officials at the Grand Central and Pennsylvania railroad stations, 50 persons a day miss their trains as a result of becoming lost in the subways. Police say hundreds are lost in New York daily.

OFFER OF HOME WORK BY MAIL NOT AS ADVERTISED

Seekers of profitable part-time home occupation are often disappointed by deceptive advertisements that put them to unnecessary expense. The national vigilance committee of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World calls attention to what is classed as a deceptive advertisement placed by an eastern company.

The advertisement announces a paying proposition for office workers, spare or whole time. Inquirers are informed by circular letter that the opportunity to make $30 to $60 a week is open for full-time mailing list compilation work with corresponding pay for part-time effort. The applicant is, however, requested to remit $2 for instructions and expense in starting him upon the work. The book is forwarded upon receipt of the money, but no work is forthcoming. It is charged. It is up to the purchaser to start in business for himself. The book is itself at best an amateur treatise on the mailing list business.

IS RELATIVE OF HEROIC CARRIER

Capt. Anderson, Dead At Sturgeon Bay, Half Brother Of Dr. Johnson

Capt. Peter Anderson, the heroic mail carrier who is dead at Sturgeon Bay, is a half brother to Dr. O. N. Johnson of this city. Dr. Johnson was notified of his death but was unable to attend the funeral because of illness.

Capt. Anderson is the man who passed unharmed day after day through the perils of dangerous Death's Door passage. He drove over the ice to supply Washington Island with mail after navigation closed. He was taken ill with influenza and died on March 3.

Death's Door passage, named by the French Des Morts—and mariners admit the French knew what they were talking about when they applied the name—is a narrow passage connecting Green Bay and Lake Michigan. On one hand is Washington Island, on the other, the mainland. But for the government mail carrier, residents of the island would be cut off from the rest of the world after navigation ceases. Capt. Pete kept them in touch with passing events by daily visits.

To reach the island, Capt. Pete drove a team and sleigh when the ice was strong enough to bear his weight. Other times he rode horseback to lessen the weight. Occasionally, he slipped and slid his way over the precarious ice of the passage because it would not bear up horse or sleigh. Sometimes he used a boat, and sometimes drove part way and rowed the rest of the way. He stared death in the face a dozen times some days—and lived to die in bed.

AUSTRIA HAS MANY ARMIES, TROUBLES

Workers Arm Despite Supposed
Seizure Of Arms By Allied Commission

By Associated Press.
Vienna.—Besides its little standing army of about 25,000 men and its state gendarmierie, Austria has two other armed and organized forces, both irregular and both probably without the pale of the treaty. In the opinion of many observers here the two last mentioned organizations may lead to trouble. They are the admittedly well armed labor battalions, and the growing "heimwehr" or conservative armed organizations of the provinces.

The latter are composed largely of the peasant and lesser professional classes and ex-officers, and are particularly strong in Styria and the Tyrol. Just how and where they got arms, ammunition and equipment is not known. The Allied Military Control commission was supposed to have stripped the country of military material, but the fact remains that both these organizations are fully equipped and number many thousands. Recently the police found in one of the "heimwehr" headquarters not only guns and loaded clubs but hand grenades and poison gasses.

Cocoon Oil Fine For Washing Hair

If you want to keep your hair in good condition, be careful what you wash it with.

Many soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much free alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and is very harmful. Multisilf coconut oil shampoo (which is pure and entirely greaseless), is much better than anything else you can use for shampooing, as this can't possibly injure the hair.

Simply put two or three teaspoonsful of Multisilf in a cup or glass with a little warm water, then moisten the hair with water and rub this Multisilf in. It will make an abundance of rich, creamy lather, and cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. The lather rinses out easily, and removes every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excess oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves it fine and silky, bright, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get Multisilf coconut oil shampoo at any drug store. It is very cheap, and a few ounces is enough to last everyone in the family for months. Be sure your druggist gives you Multisilf.

Ever since Mildred Churchill, Macon, Ga., (shown here) was declared the prettiest girl in Wesleyan College she's been deluged with proposals. She has 200 now. They're from all over the United States and Canada and include an Illinois farmer, $5. "None of 'em for me," says Mildred.

MOONSHINERS SURE OF JAIL SENTENCE

Moonsliners convicted in Judge A. M. Spencer's court are scheduled for a long stay in jail, the judge declared, Thursday after sentencing William Lemmens of Kimberly to a workhouse term.

"Any moonshiner who is convicted in my court is going behind the bars," the judge declared. Lemmens drew a sentence of 90 days.

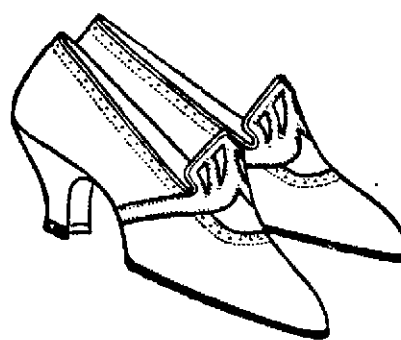

The two forces narrowly avoided a serious clash recently in Jendenburg, Styria, and this incident showed even more clearly the latent danger that lies in this condition of affairs. Workmen from some factories entered the homes of "heimwehr" peasants at night and seized their arms. They were arrested in turn, and when a first demand for their release was refused, nearly 2,000 workmen, militarily armed and organized, assembled and marched on the town. Gendarmes were mobilized, reinforced by students from the two state universities there, and for two days the two forces faced each other over a little bridge. Then the government ordered the release of the arrested workmen, and further trouble was avoided.

The recent disclosure that that the large industrial concerns of Austria are paying to their central body a regular tax greater than their state tax, for the maintenance of "technical men," which is merely a disguise for strike breakers and secret police, has not served to lessen the ill feeling of the workmen, and this condition is used by them as a justification for their own organizations.

KAUKAUNA POLICE STILL IN SEARCH FOR CHECK FORGER

Merchants Are Swindled By
"Working Man" Who Purchases Groceries

Police at Kaukauna are still searching for the forger who cashed two worthless checks at Kaukauna stores. He is believed to be a laboring man, from the description given. His face was blackened as if from work, supposed to have been part of his deception.

The man cashed the two worthless checks for about $24.50 each about 9 o'clock Saturday night, presenting them at the A. Golden and John Hopenberger stores. He purchased a quantity of groceries and received the balance of the $24.50 in cash.

Blank checks had been stolen from the store of Anton Verkuilen at Little Chute. They were made out to "Henry Myers" and the signature of Mr. Verkuilen was forged at the bottom.

Discovery of the forgery was not made until early this week, when the checks had gone through clearing at the banks.

SEEK FACTS FROM KRENN THROUGH DEPOSITION

The deposition of William Krenn in the case of Appleton Transportation company vs. William Krenn was taken Friday morning before L. Hugo Kefer, circuit court commissioner, under the discovery statute. Mark Catlin appeared for the plaintiff and Alfred C. Bosser and Rooney & Grogan for the defendant.

The deposition was taken for the purpose of securing certain information which the stockholder desired. Krenn was formerly a stockholder in the company, but recently disposed of his interests to Dennis Venturis of Kimberly.

20 NAMES READY FOR FOUNDLINGS

New York Haven Of Deserted
Babies Picks Names In Advance

Special To Post-Crescent.
New York.—Twenty tags hang in a row in Miss Edith Hooper's office in the New York Nursery and Child's Hospital. Each tag bears a name.

These are names of children yet unborn. These tags are waiting for the abandoned babies of 1923. Babies will be found in doorways and halls and church steps and railroad waiting rooms—as they always are. They will have no mothers, nor fathers, nor friends; but they will have names and a home.

A tag will be taken down when the first 1923 foundling arrives.

"Here comes Alfred Stevens," But it's a girl, and the nurse adds: "Wrong—it's Isabel Older."

First come first served with these names. Next to Alfred the boys will be tagged James Adams, Charles Wilcox, Edward Wilson, Irving Gibbs and Francis Tilden. Following will be Anne Calder, Elizabeth Bidwell, Mary Baxter, Blanche Eissell and Harriet Bronson.

Tags are ready for colored babies.

too—Frank Williams, William Nicholson, John Henry, Thomas David, Florence Jackson, Margaret Jones, Lillian Smith and Sarah Raymond. "We have been picking names in advance for years," said Miss Hooper, head of the boarding department. "It means identification, lack of confusion and avoids duplication."

"Foundlings are taken to Bellevue Hospital and where no religion is indicated they are adjudged alternately to be Protestant and Catholic. The former are brought here and Catholic institutions take the others."

Why just 20 names were selected for 1923 was explained thus:

"We estimate 20 will be enough, for foundlings are decreasing in numbers yearly. Last year there was a decline of 25 per cent. If more come along—well, we'll get our heads together and pick some emergency names. The names are temporary, anyway, for the babies are adopted so fast that there really has been a shortage of foundlings this year. Isn't that fine?"

Women Buy Too Many Clothes, Modiste Says

BY MARIAN HALE

Are you scanning the fashion books?
Are you window shopping?
Are you saving out of your family household allowance?

All, of course, for your Easter style splurge!
If so, take a word of advice from Peggy Hoyt, the fashionable New York costumer, whose hats and frocks are in demand by the best dressed women of society and the stage. She knows whereof she speaks.

"Don't buy too much," she urges. "Stop and plan before you spend. Build your wardrobe as a whole, not by bit. Plan it as you would a house, beginning with the basement."

CHOOSE COLOR SCHEME
"Decide on a color scheme for the season for all your costumes that will be harmonious and in one key. Perhaps you'll want the national color, navy blue, to predominate, relieved by beige and gray—the two most beautiful shades for the American woman."

"When your shoes and hats will match any of your costumes and you will not need a large number of accessories, as you do when each costume is a unit by itself."

"The trouble is, most women buy too many clothes, too casually and too carelessly. They have so much to select from that they never develop an individual style. They make bad combinations or else never combine each costume to the point of distinction."

PLAN AND THINK

"For that reason I honestly believe that women with limited incomes learn to dress better than their sisters whose purses have no bottoms, because they have to plan and think."

"That's absolutely essential to good dressing."

"Get over the idea that lots of clothes are necessary in a wardrobe. They aren't. But let everything you own count. It's the gowns you buy and don't wear that are extravagant, not the one for which you pay a good price, but are satisfied with and wear with pleasure as long as you have it."

"Three good dresses are better than a wardrobe full of cheap or poorly selected ones."

STYLISH AND ELEGANT

"True elegance is always achieved by simplicity, Miss Hoyt believes. 'A well dressed woman always walks down the street without attracting attention to herself,' she says, 'but she is always noticeable among well dressed women for the perfection of her lines and fabrics.'"

"This year there is a return to color and we are going to be tempted by much that is bizarre in color and design, but the knowing woman will resist the temptation to look like an Egyptian princess or the sheik's wife."

Miss Hoyt herself is featuring the most simple looking frocks this season, but it is the simplicity of the sophisticated.

Mrs. Pinchot Real Force In State Politics

BY HARRY HUNT

Washington—Are women taken seriously in politics?

Ask Mrs. Gifford Pinchot, wife of the man who upset the powerful "G. O. P." organization in Pennsylvania and is now progressive governor of the Keystone state.

Mrs. Pinchot, everybody concedes, has a sizeable hand in her husband's success.

She campaigned for him. That she was taken seriously—that what she had to say counted more than the fact that she was a woman—she declares was proved by the fact that not once in all the publicity given to her meetings were her clothes described.

LIKES STARTLING EFFECTS

Mrs. Pinchot's father was Lloyd Bruce, long editor of the North American Review and minister to Holland. Her great-grandfather was Peter Cooper.

Mrs. Pinchot herself is tall and slender, with the reddest of red hair. She is frankly fond of startling color effects. One day she may crown her vivid locks with a brilliant orange turban. The next it may be a green hat with magenta roses. That these striking effects passed unnoticed by her friends at her meetings, her friends declare, can be accounted for only by the absorbing interest they took in what she had to say.

Few women have mastered the art of forceful speaking like Mrs. Pinchot. This accomplishment won for her, early in her public life, the description of "a Roosevelt in petticoats."

NEXT YEAR'S CAMPAIGN

Because of her demonstrated ability as a campaigner, Mrs. Pinchot may be expected to take a prominent share in next year's political struggle. Her influence may play no small part in shaping the decisions of woman voters especially.

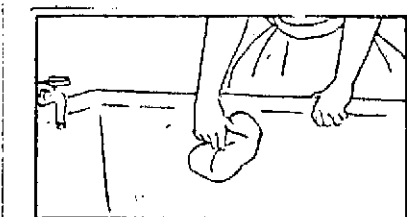

In anticipation of this, on April 13, she is scheduled to address the Des Moines convention of the National League of Woman Voters on "Democracy and the Woman Voter."

If her spring gown on that occasion detracts from her speech all previous records will be broken.

Household Suggestions

CLEANING THE TUB

Just common baking soda on a damp cloth makes a very effective and efficient cleaner for the bathtub.

DIP IN MILK

Stiffen your fine muslins, organ-dies or dainty laces by dipping them in skimmed milk.

BRUSH IS BEST

A brush is better than a cloth for removing dust from window sashes.

baseboards and corners. You can have assorted sizes.

SPRINKLING THE WASH

A good way to sprinkle your clothes is to dip a whiskbroom in water and use it instead of distributing the water by hand. It is a quicker method.

SHAMROCK ROLLS

By Bertha E. Shapleigh

Four a cup of scalded milk over two tablespoons of sugar and a half teaspoon of salt and when it is lukewarm, add a half cake of yeast soaked in two tablespoons of warm water, and a cup of flour.

Stir until smooth, cover, let stand in a warm place until the batter is full of bubbles, adding then two tablespoons of melted butter, a slightly beaten egg, and two more cups of flour.

Stir with a knife until a dough is formed stiff enough to take onto a board and knead, adding more flour if necessary.

Knead until dough is smooth and free from lumps, return to bowl and let rise until it has doubled in bulk. Then take onto board again and divide into 18 pieces, divide each piece into three equal parts, and shape these into smooth, round balls. Place three of these balls in each muffin tin and let rise until light.

Bake for 20 minutes in a quick oven, brush over with melted butter, and bake one or two minutes longer.

MARRIAGE A LA MODE

In Italy Sunday is considered the only lucky day for a wedding.

The suitor always is lavish in his gifts of red flowers to the girl he is wooing. White ones are considered omens of ill fortune. The Italian bride has no bridesmaids. Unmarried women do not attend weddings.

SIMPLICITY bespeaks culture; extravagance is the voice of vulgarity. It's natural for a young woman to regard her wedding day as the most important of her life, and to wish to observe it accordingly. But in all arrangements, whether it be in the selection of the trousseau or plans for a church ceremony, she should remember that garish ostentation is extremely bad taste. Studied simplicity has more charm.

WEDDINGS

1: Wedding invitations should be issued not earlier than four weeks, not later than two weeks, before the wedding ceremony.

2: The couple to be married should consult carefully together in making up the invitation list.

3: The wedding reception must be given by the bride's family; never by the groom's family.

4: The bride's family bears all expenses of the wedding, except the cost of the wedding license, the bride's bouquet, the wedding ring, the clergyman's fee and gifts to the best man and ushers, which the groom pays.

5: The groom, if wise, will request the bride to select her own wedding ring; it's something which she must wear all her life.

IT'S BAD MANNERS for the groom, no matter how rich, to offer to contribute to the bride's trousseau or to the bride's family's proper part of the wedding expenses.

AN INTIMATE STORY OF INNOCENT EMOTIONS REVEALED IN PRIVATE LETTERS

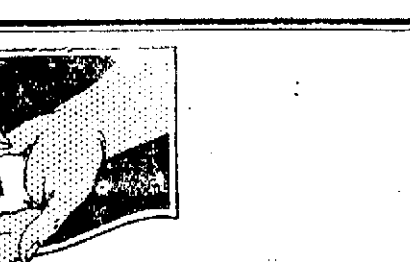

LETTER FROM MRS. JOSEPH GRAVES HAMILTON TO HER PROSPECTIVE SON-IN-LAW JOHN ALDEN PRESCOTT

MY DEAR BOY: I feel that I know you well enough to tell you this, my dear John, because my little girl has done nothing but talk of you since she came home.

I confess that at first I was rather disappointed as well as doubtful as to her marriage with you. There are so many young men here in her own town that both her father and I have known ever since they were children who, it seemed to me, would make a most suitable match.

Besides, I hated to feel that when Leslie married she would go to another city; but of course I have lived long enough to know that when love speaks, we fathers and mothers must step aside.

I need not tell you, my dear John, that my daughter Leslie is one of the sweetest girls in all the world. Of course, you must realize, however, that she has never had any great responsibilities. I have always been one of those old-fashioned mothers

BETTER pancakes require better pancake flour, and you get better pancake flour in Pillsbury's. We have made Pillsbury's the better pancake flour by using fine-textured, high-quality wheat flour, and plenty of it, as the chief ingredient. The difference is instantly apparent in the light, fluffy, tempting golden-brown pancakes it makes—delicious, tender and digestible.

younger set in Sharon a unique place. Ever since her coming out party, I think she has been the most popular girl in the town. You should know, John, that you have taken here away from three or four of the most eligible and wealthy men in all Pennsylvania; consequently I want all her friends to realize that we are giving her to you gladly and proudly, and I want to make her wedding an event in the annals of Sharon's society.

We have decided that the wedding shall take place at St. James with full choir. There will be six or eight bridesmaids. You, of course, will choose your best man and any of the ushers that you may wish to be present. The others will be supplied from among Leslie's youthful admirers.

This wedding will take place at high noon. The bishop has kindly consented to officiate, assisted by the rector and assistant rector of St. James. Of course, your mother and any other of your friends will be present and we will see that they are entertained at our home, the Country Club, and Sharon's best hotel, for at least a week before the wedding day, as there will be many parties given for you both.

You and Leslie will arrange about wedding trips, or any other purely personal details.

Yesterday, at a luncheon given to Leslie's friends I made the announcement of your engagement. I am sending you a clipping from the paper. I shall keep you informed from time to time of all our arrangements, and if you have any suggestions to make,

I hope you will do so.

Sincerely yours,
ALICE CARTON HAMILTON
CLIPPING FROM SHARON DISPATCH

Yesterday afternoon at one of the smartest luncheons of the season, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Graves Hamilton announced the engagement of their daughter Leslie to Mr. John Alden Prescott of Albany, New York. Mr. Prescott comes from one of the oldest of Turtan families, his mother being a lineal descendant of John Alden, and is a prominent young business man in the eastern city.

The wedding will take place on the 22nd of next month, and will probably be one of the most splendid nuptial gatherings that has ever taken place in Sharon, as Miss Leslie Hamilton has been one of the belles of the city ever since she returned from school two years ago.

The bride will be preceded to the altar by eight of the most beautiful girls in society as bridesmaids. Four little daughters of Sharon's smartest society women will strew flowers before her. Everyone is looking forward to this event.

TOMORROW: John Alden Prescott receives a letter from his mother concerning his marriage.

FLOUNCES
Wide flounces adorning skirts are an unfamiliar sight as yet, but indications are that before the summer is over we will become used to them. The fashionable ruffles do not stand out in the old fashion, but maintains the straight silhouette.

FANTASTIC SLIPPERS

The winter of 1922-23 is seeing the gayest slippers and most fantastic shoes women have worn since the days when fairy tales were true. Silver slippers of Cinderella gleam everywhere in the evening, with jewels glinting on their straps. Black brocades with bright gold buckles shine in the avenue parades by day and red Russian leather boots with embroidery tops catch the high lights.

We may seem to be stressing shoes, as they say in dress sets. But it is just as they state, day by day they grow more frivolous and we merely try to keep up.

It is so now that gold or silver brocade slippers and silver turbans are the points of a costume. Between are dark cloaks heavy with fur or squirrel wraps that set off the silver beads.

FIRST SUITS

The popular suit model of the present moment is the short belted or box coat, heavily embroidered or braided, accompanying a simple frock with a plain, narrow skirt.

Animals Talk; Pastor Says He Can Understand

By L. L. Animals talk and understand each other much better than human beings because they never attempt to lie to one another. Rev. F. B. Stockdale, pastor of the Methodist church, here did not, as others have done, travel into the wildest parts of Africa to arrive at this conclusion. Instead he made it a study of his own barnyard. "Observe, for instance," he says, "the hen. "I could indicate a dozen or more warnings by which the hen with a brood of chickens endeavors to keep her flock out of danger. "From my study window I can listen to a hen clucking and tell whether the cause of the excitement is a hawk or a dog and whether the danger is far away or near at hand. "Or observe the sparrow. In a flock of a dozen sparrows quarreling eight or ten different cries may be distinguished. "I trained a spider to come out of its lair when I knocked on the old wooden post where it lived. It would climb to my shoulder. "Two dogs may be the best of pals but when one is indisposed to play the other will pass it with no evidence of recognition. "These and many other experiences have convinced me that animals converse with each other readily. It is by no means always done with sound but more frequently by means of vibrations as in the case of the spider. "Why should the talk of animals be of interest to the theologian? Because, just as a dog's intelligence is increased by association with humans, so I believe that man's intelligence is increased when he allows himself to be drawn within the mind that controls the universe."

U. S. IS MAKING USEFUL MEN OUT OF WAR'S WRECKAGE

Bolles, Legion Leader, Tells What Has Been Accomplished in Training

BY LEMUEL BOLLES

Indianapolis—When the World War ended this country was brought face to face with the problem of having tens of thousands of young men on its hands who were so disabled it was impossible for them to return to their old occupation to earn a living.

The Federal Board of Vocational Training was created to handle and develop this work, and out of its activities grew a phase new to Americans—vocational rehabilitation. This meant roughly teaching new jobs to men who had been rendered unfit for their old jobs by war injuries.

The work of the federal board developed, but progress was not rapid. Dissatisfaction had arisen through the functioning of other governmental agencies charged with the care of veterans.

At the insistence of the American Legion, Congress, in 1921, created the United States Veterans Bureau, which immediately absorbed all activities in the care of veterans and began the elimination of the conflicting forces.

The federal board and its activities were absorbed by the bureau. Colonel Charles R. Forbes, director of the bureau, placed Colonel Robert I. Reese in charge of the vocational rehabilitation with the title of assistant director.

The policy of the veterans bureau has been to train men for vocations where their disabilities are not a handicap. A vocation is selected for a man individually, whose his disabilities will not handicap him in following it successfully.

On Sept. 1, 1922, 36,941 disabled veterans were receiving vocational training under the veterans bureau. These men are receiving instruction in practically all of our large universities, colleges, and vocational schools.

They are being trained in approximately 350 different trades, vocations, professions, or in agriculture.

On this same date 20,503 had completed their training and had obtained employment.

The peak of the vocational training has been reached and passed, unless the provisions of the law are further liberalized by Congress.

The high water mark was reached in March, 1922, when there were 104,805 veterans in training. In July, 1919, there were 5,525 veterans in training; in July, 1920, there were 22,751; in July, 1921, 87,518, and in July, 1922, 99,900.

The total number who had entered training Oct. 1, 1922, was 151,787. The total in training at that same date was 36,941 and the total number who had completed training was 22,503. Nine hundred and nineteen disabled veterans have died while in training.

In June of last year Colonel Forbes, director of the bureau, established an employment service, as the result of a conference attended by the legion. This organization establishes contact with employers and obtains employment opportunities for rehabilitated veterans. Many of the positions obtained pay salaries considerably above the pre-war salaries of these men.

There are also hundreds who have completed their training and have opened up business establishments for themselves.

Who will say the new method has not shown a distinct improvement over the old pension system? Is it not only fairer to the disabled themselves, but better for the country to have these defenders of our flag again become productive factors in the economic fabric of our nation?

UNEMPLOYMENT AND HUNGER IS RUHR PROBLEM

Crisis Is Near, Declare Correspondents Writing For London Papers

London—Gloomy pictures of the situation in the Ruhr, with warnings of an impending crisis, are painted Thursday by some of the London newspaper correspondents.

A Dueseldorfer dispatch to the Telegraph says that unemployment is increasing and that the political situation is dangerous. Economic conditions he describes as disastrous, asserting that 25,000 persons are without work in Dueseldorfer alone and that the unemployment wages are insufficient. The workmen are noticeably depressed, the correspondent adds, and rumors are current that they are beginning to doubt the issue of the struggle.

SOUP KITCHENS POPULAR

The French, this dispatch asserts, are preparing to deal with the food problem which will undoubtedly arise with the increase of unemployment. Their soup kitchens, boycotted at first, are now popular.

The Cologne correspondent of the Daily Express reports that conditions in Essen and Bochum are pitiful and that the death rate among the children has risen 20 per cent in the last month and milk is almost unobtainable.

The phrase "hunger block" is on the lips of the whole German population. The French military authorities have given definite orders to admit all foodstuffs to the cities, but some of the provisions never arrive and part of the shipments are stolen. Education, the correspondent adds, is at a standstill. The French have occupied the schools. The passing of each day finds public feeling embittered more and more.

"The impression that the cauldron in the Ruhr may boil over at any time with fearful results in bloodshed," is expressed by the Cologne representative of the Westminster Gazette.

TO ACT QUICKLY ON LOANS FOR HOMES

B. & L. Directors Plan Special Meeting Tuesday To Aid Homebuilders

Prompt decision will be given eight applicants for loans by Appleton Building and Loan association through a special meeting of the board of directors at 7 o'clock next Tuesday evening at the office of George H. Beckley, secretary.

This arrangement was made by the board at its regular meeting Thursday evening, when requests were made for loans approximating $20,000 for erection of eight new homes.

The loans were referred to the appraisal committee, the recommendations will be heard Tuesday and the requests either affirmed or rejected.

Approvals are to be made under a new rule hereafter. The time limit for submitting applications each month will be the second Tuesday. All requests on file at that time will be acted upon by the appraisal committee previous to the board meeting the second Thursday. In this way loans may be disposed of the evening they are presented to the directors.

Efforts will be made to interest a large number of persons in membership in the association so the goal of $100,000 worth of loans will be reached. This will be $40,000 more than in 1922.

The board discussed establishment of a permanent office, the need for clerical help and other matters of administration and will act on these at a subsequent meeting.

Wonder who originated that glib remark about the "fickle public," anyway? Certainly, in all our dealings with the public, we've never found any justifications for it. On the contrary, we'll go on the record as saying that nothing is so sure of CONTINUED public support as the man or institution that DESERVES it—that really serves the public in the way the public wants to be served.

Our meats have earned an enviable reputation for their flavor and tenderness, and in almost every case people who have tried our meat once, are now regular patrons of this shop.

APPLETON, CLINTONVILLE, MENASHA, BEAR CREEK WIN

First Day's Victors Play In District Cage Tournament Semi-Finals Tonight

EXPECT APPLETON AND CLINTONVILLE TO MEET IN FINALS

Blue And Orange Puts Up Fast Game—Denney Uses Subs To Finish Bays

Appleton high school and Clintonville will from all appearances be returned winners in the semi final games Friday night of the Appleton district basketball tournament. Thursday's games were featured by spilling of the "dope."

Appleton and Clintonville win their games Friday night they will meet in the finals Saturday and the winner will not only be awarded the district championship trophy but will enter the state tournament at Madison this month.

Clintonville, with its long string of victories, had little or no trouble in defeating Seymour in the second afternoon game. Clintonville won 23 to 8 and as the result it was automatically assigned to play Friday night with Bear Creek, winners over West DePere in the first afternoon game. The Bears won 14 to 12 and created the first sensation of the tournament. The West DePere aggregation came here with 14 straight victories and was regarded as a contender for the final honors. Bear Creek, however, is not expected to repeat the same trick Friday night with Clintonville as the Four Wheel Drive City in its game here demonstrated a superior brand of ball marked by unusually good shooting.

LIVES UP TO EXPECTATIONS

Appleton high school surpassed all expectations by trimming West Green Bay, 46 to 6, in the last game of the evening. It was the best score of the evening and the best game. Appleton is to meet Menasha Friday night. The Fall City team pulled the unexpected by trouncing New Holstein, which had a much better pre-tournament record. Coach Denney, center for the Appleton team, was the star of the tilt and tallied 17 points. He missed only one free throw out of six chances. It will be this man that Appleton high school will have to clamp down if it intends to win and get a chance in the finals.

Coach Denney used all of his substitutes toward the end and for this reason the score did not reach the 50 mark. The Blue and Orange offense was the speedster of the season and the guarding was impracticable. It can hardly be said that any one man was the star of the game. Everybody starred and those seeking all tournament material are almost unanimous that every Appleton lad will have to be picked or get an honorable mention. Briese who led with seven field goals missed five chances for free throws, but his eye otherwise was good. The scoring record of Mills, Ashman and Briese was checked because Coach Denney asked them to take a rest when it was found that the team could continue well enough with the subs. Hagen's guarding drew more praise than any other time of the year. The only time Green Bay was able to accomplish anything was toward the last period when the second men weren't offering as keen opposition as the regulars.

EXPECT BIG CROWD

The game between Appleton and Menasha is expected to pack the Armory. About 800 saw the contest Thursday night and 200 witnessed the battle in the afternoon.

Menasha is expected to bring with it followers from its own city and Neenah. It will be a keen contest. Both Coach Royal and Coach Denney believe in the five-man defense and the style of the two schools is virtually the same.

'DOPE SPILLED' EARLY AS DE PERE IS GIVEN BEATING

Clintonville Rout Seymour With Good Shooting Aggregation

The opening of the tournament, the game between West DePere and Bear Creek, was marked by the usual "spilling of the dope," when Bear Creek defeated the Brownco team 14 to 12, the first defeat handed to the West DePere outfit this season.

MENASHA PUTS UP GLASSY EXHIBITION WITH NEW HOLSTEIN

Center Grove Is Star Of Game—Tallies 17 Points Out Of 31

A game that smacked of class was the tilt between Menasha and New Holstein, the first encounter of the evening in the district tournament in the Armory. Menasha won 31 to 7.

Menasha's showing was excellent. Center Grove outshone his teammates in the floorwork and the shooting department. He got 17 points out of the 31. The entire Red and White squad worked well and stirred up the hopes of Coach Royal and the school followers. O. H. Plenzke, the Menasha school principal, is district manager of the tournament.

STRONG QUINTETS CAPTURE GAMES IN OTHER DISTRICTS

Marinette, Janesville And Oshkosh Reported Among Winners

Practically all strong teams won their games in the first tilts of the sixteen district tournaments held in Wisconsin for the selection of teams for the state tournament to be held in Madison toward the end of the month.

Marinette, Janesville and Oshkosh, regarded as possible state contenders took their games handily.

Following is a partial report of the games in other sections of the state as furnished by the Associated Press: At Appleton—Bear Creek 14; West DePere 12.

At Oshkosh—Fond du Lac 16; Winneconne 31; Marquette 20; Ripon 17.

At Janesville—Bellevue 18; Watrous 14; Waukesha 15; Randolph 10; Kenosha 18; West Bend 9; Slinger 18; South Milwaukee 9.

At Waterville—Beloit 16; Stoughton 14; Elkhorn 23; Palmyra 11; Madison 19; Evansville 11; Janesville 11; Madison Central 4.

At Brodhead—University High, Madison, 20; Argyle 10.

LYNCH LAND IN MENASHA MAY BLOCK BRIDGE

Acquisition Of Right-of-way For Cherry-St Road Threatens Difficulties

buildings would be on the east side of the road and all of the remainder of the 80 acres, except about 20 acres on the west side of the Menasha road, would be on the west side of the Cherry-st road. At least 50 acres would be separated from the house and barn by the proposed road.

HARD ON CATTLE

Mr. Lynch's principal objections to this are that it would be necessary to drive his cattle and livestock across a heavily traveled highway every time he sent them out to pasture or brought them to the barn and it would make the farm extremely difficult to sell. Mr. Lynch occasionally has been required to pasture his cows on the land south of the Menasha road and crossing that narrow highway, he says is attended by great difficulties because of the heavy automobile traffic. Three or four of his cows were struck by automobiles last summer, a dog was killed, several of his chickens were killed and a horse was struck. He believes that the difficulty and danger of crossing the Cherry-st road, 100 feet wide, will be much greater and it will be necessary to cross a road to get to any of his fields.

JUST MISSES SILO

Another serious objection to the proposed location of the highway, according to Mr. Lynch, is that it will make it very difficult to fill his silo, which would be not more than 15 feet from the edge of the road. This scarcely leaves room for placing a silo filler and a wagon from which to unload the corn and the process of filling a silo would be dangerous because of the close proximity of the highway. It would compel him to build additional fences along the road and the wide highway would be hard to cross with heavily laden wagons in times of heavy traffic.

The junction of the proposed Cherry-st road and the Menasha road would form a sharp turn for automobiles approaching from the east on the latter road, so sharp in fact that it probably will be necessary to widen the end of the new road. This will require another large part of the orchard and probably mean the destruction or removal of nearly all the trees. Those that remained would be exceedingly close to the highway. The expense of concrete and the purchase of the additional land would add to the expense.

SUGGEST TUNNEL

There have been some suggestions that a tunnel be built under the road to provide safe passage for Mr. Lynch's cattle. It so happens that a deep and wide ravine passes along the northern extremity of the farm over which the road might be built, leaving a tunnel underneath. This plan has a drawback, however, that in the ravine is a creek through which much water passes, especially in the spring and after rains. Mr. Lynch said it would be almost impossible to drive the cows through this water. To build a tunnel of sufficient size to permit cattle to pass under the road without going through the creek would be quite expensive. In any event the ravine would require a good deal of filling and a culver construction, which would add to the cost of the project.

All these things could and probably would be advanced by Mr. Lynch as considerations if the city attempts to purchase the right-of-way. Mr. Lynch feels that it will very materially lessen the value of his property, especially in view of the fact that he wishes to continue farming, and it would be very difficult to sell for farm purposes.

SEES NO BENEFITS

Mr. Lynch does not believe that his property will be benefited in any way by the proposed road. The argument that some day the land will be platted and sold for lots does not appeal to him. He believes that it will be many, many years before the city will expand sufficiently to create a demand for lots on his farm and he does not consider the possibilities of the far distant future as an argument for taking a loss at this time.

As was stated before, condemnation of the property by the city acting alone is impossible. According to Attorney F. S. Bradford, whose opinion was solicited, the city cannot condemn property outside its limits for public highways.

Mr. Bradford was asked the following question: Can the city of Appleton continue Cherry-st to the south a distance of about 550 feet into Winnebago-co. to connect with the prolongation of Foster-st without the cooperation of the town of Menasha or the county of Winnebago?

Mr. Bradford's answer was "No." WHAT LAWYER SAID "There are provisions," he said, "in the statutes for a city going beyond its limits to open streets to connect with property purchased for cemeteries, a garbage disposal plant or a park owned outside its limits. There is no authority for the city of Appleton going into Winnebago-co. to condemn lands for public highways."

Mr. Bradford explained that it is possible for the town of Menasha or the county board of Winnebago-co. to condemn the land for highway purposes. This provides a possibility for the city. It might secure the cooperation of either the town or the county board to bring the necessary action. But that, at the best, would be expensive because Mr. Lynch feels he can present proof that the damages he will suffer by reason of the road are very great and that the benefits will be practically nil.

OFFERS FINE ROUTE

Members of the common council have suggested an alternative route through the Lynch property which possibly will move the road a little farther from the silo and may possibly save some of the orchard but it still presents the same problem of bisecting the farm with a wide highway. The alternative plan also will make it necessary to widen the end of the road because of the sharp turn which drivers coming from the east on the Menasha road would have to make.

Mr. Lynch has offered the city a free right-of-way through his property if it would bend the highway sharply toward the east as it approaches his land. The road then would pass through the extreme east end of his land and would leave the farm buildings and the remainder of the farm in one piece. He said the aldermen to whom this plan had been suggested would not consider it because of the sharp turns that would be necessary. It is quite probable that if that plan were adopted the state highway commission would refuse to route state highways over it because of the sharp turns.

WANTS TO BE FAIR

Mr. Lynch has no desire to block construction of the road either by refusing to sell his property or by demanding an exorbitant price. He wants, however, to be compensated for the damage which his property will suffer.

"No, I haven't set a price on the right-of-way," Mr. Lynch said. "Nobody has asked me how much I wanted and I haven't made up my mind. Most of the aldermen have been here and looked over the land; they know where the road would run. I haven't discussed a purchase price with them. Some of them asked me to give it to the city but I won't do that. I have asked with some members of the Menasha town board and the Winnebago county board about this matter but we never reached any conclusion. I don't know what either board would do in the event that condemnation proceedings were asked of them."

TWO REPORTS DENIED

Mr. Lynch denied a report heard in Appleton that he had asked $25,000 for his property and that the county board of Winnebago-co. had agreed to back him up in that stand. Mr. Lynch said he had never heard of such a thing. He said also that the statements alleged to have been made by some aldermen that the right-of-way through his property could be purchased for $2,500, were not based on fact.

"I wouldn't consider for a minute the proposition of selling a road through here for any such sum as $2,500. I wouldn't think of driving my cattle across the road for that money."

All of which indicates that acquisition of a right-of-way for extending Cherry-st through to the Menasha road will be attended by considerable expense and some difficulty. Mr. Lynch wants to be fair but it is evident that what to him will be a fair compensation for his losses and for his inconvenience will be a sizable sum. And condemnation without the help of either Menasha or Winnebago-co. by no means, assured, is impossible.

PLAN EYE CONSERVATION DAY FOR ENTIRE NATION

New York—With the aid of Secretary of Labor Davis, a movement has been started for observance throughout the country of Eye Sight Conservation day in the schools, Federal and state officials, university professors, engineers, industrialists and civic leaders are cooperating with the Eye Sight Conservation Council of America to remedy conditions of vision in classroom and factory.

Defective vision among school children and workers in the industries has, surveys in numerous towns and cities reveal, caused enormous economic and physical losses, which, authorities declare, can be eliminated. Secretary Davis is in deep sympathy with the movement, particularly with regard to children.

"I am convinced," he said recently, "that mankind owes no higher duty to society and to God than serves to childhood, and that whatever we may be able to do to aid the citizens of the future will earn a great reward."

"Every teacher in the country, according to the council is a potential crusader for better vision. Teachers everywhere are being given instructions for testing visual acuity. Success of the movement, according to its sponsors, will mean a definite physical advance in future generations of Americans."

QUART OF WATER CLEANS KIDNEYS

Take a Little Salts if Your Back Hurts, or Bladder Is Troubling You

No man or woman can make a mistake by flushing the kidneys occasionally, says a well-known authority. Eating too much rich food creates acids, which clog the kidneys. They become overworked from the strain, get sluggish and fail to filter the waste and poisons from the blood. Then we get sick. Rheumatism, headaches, liver trouble, nervousness, dizziness, sleeplessness and urinary disorders often come from sluggish kidneys.

The moment you feel a dull ache in the kidneys, or your back hurts, or if the urine is cloudy, offensive, full of sediment, irregular of passage or attended by a sensation of scalding, begin drinking a quart of water each day, also get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast, and in a few days your kidneys may act fine.

This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to flush and stimulate the kidneys; also to help neutralize the acids in the system, so they no longer cause irritation, thus often relieving bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to help keep the kidneys clean and active and the blood pure, thereby often avoiding serious kidney complications. By all means have your physician examine your kidneys at least twice a year.

WOMAN CHIEF AIDE TO BULGARIAN PREMIER

By Associated Press
Lausanne—Mademoiselle Nadya Stancioff, who is the chief advisor of Premier Stamboulsky, of Bulgaria, in his negotiations at Lausanne, was named secretary to the Bulgarian legation at Washington several months ago. But the premier has been unwilling to release her from her duties as assistant in his office, and it probably will be many months before she undertakes her responsible work in the United States.

Premier Stamboulsky knows only Bulgarian. Mademoiselle Stancioff speaks her native tongue, English, French, German and Italian equally well, and her familiarity with the political affairs of Central and Southern Europe make her indispensable to the premier. She is the daughter of the Bulgarian minister in London, and her mother is French.

At the Genoa conference Mademoiselle Stancioff acted as Stamboulsky's interpreter and translated his Bulgarian addresses into whatever language was required. She shared fame there with Madame Agresti, the Italian woman who converted the addresses of David Lloyd George and other English-speaking delegates into Italian with great oratorical effect.

To Top The Mode With Smartness

by Muriel Mertens

It is often said—and quite truly—that you can always tell when a woman is wearing a new hat by the gratified, pleased expression on her face. Somehow, with a becoming new hat she feels well dressed, no matter how old and shabby her frock or her coat may be. And a smart hat really does set off the costume as well as the face, marvelously. But perhaps the newest idea is to have a hat which is suitable and appropriate with the rest of one's costume. In fact, the real secret of being well dressed is the ability to wear things that go well together and are becoming to you. The woman who has very few costumes, but makes them complete by having her hat just perfectly suited to her frock and her shoes, gloves and hose in perfect accord, will always look well dressed, even though she wears that same costume every day in the year.

Unless one keeps strict rein on one's self, one is apt to see some charming little hat in a shop window whose great appeal lies in the fact that it is wholly different from the things we have and of which we are terribly tired. If, in addition to this, it is becoming and the saleslady is clever—we are lost and buy it without further thought. But this really is not necessary, for never before have we been offered such countless varieties and variations of the millinery mode.

For street wear the little felt cloche is still quite the smartest. Generally the crown of the cloche is high and is either rounded or cone shaped. But in the brim and in the trimming the variation is infinite. One smart little model has a narrow brim turned down so sharply in front that it resembles a bonnet and in the back it goes up so abruptly that it is flat to the crown of the hat. It is trimmed with a fuzzy little pompon far back on the right side. This tendency is seen on countless smart hats. The trimming is way back on the right side and now and then even moving right to the back.

Another smart cloche has a narrow brim turned up on the left side and abruptly down on the right. Flat against the crown, pointing down to the right shoulder is a quill.

Frequently one will see a little ribbon cockade sewed flat to the crown of the hat.

Still other styles of the cloche will be turned up in front and an extremely narrow brim turned down in the back. When this is the case a fluffy little pompon will be seen clinging closely to the right cheek.

STIFF FELTS IN VOGUE

A very unusual combination has recently come into great vogue with these stiff felt hats. A narrow binding of silver or gold on the edge of the brim and sometimes a band of this same cloth around the crown. The felt hats of any of the many shades of gray are trimmed with silver cloth, while those of brown favor the gold. In these little hats, dark blue and black are conspicuous by their absence.

For sports wear this felt mode is quite the most popular. The shape is just the same as the street hat, but the trimming is much more simple. The ever favored silk bandanna is drawn tightly across the turned-down brim of many a smart little hat which will take its way around the golf course some sunny morning. And the wearer of a felt cloche with a flat ribbon cockade is certain to be seen that very same day, so popular is this style. Even silver cloth made its appearance for sport wear when the hat was a beautiful white.

The soft felt hat which may be modeled to the wearer's every mood is just right for sports wear, though it is not worn with a street frock.

HATS FOR AFTERNOON WEAR

With the hat to be worn with an afternoon frock feathers are in high favor, but invariably they are turned down and reach far below the brim of the hat. The crowns of these hats are so generally rounded and cone shaped that a square crown is quickly noticeable, though they do make their appearance now and then.

A lovely little hat worn at a very fashionable tea recently had a small turn-down brim, and an uncured ostrich plume which started at the middle of the back of the crown and falling over the right ear curved gracefully under the charming wearer's chin. Almost every feather used tries to follow this same general line.

Frequently one will see an ostrich feather plucked so that the feathery part is just a little pompon at the end.

Strange unheard of birds, if they have long, curving feathery tails, are also quite at the height of the mode.

MODES OF THE LARGE HAT

When the large hat is worn it is usually very large, sometimes with the brim much wider in back than in front. And where a woman finds a large hat more becoming she may quite properly select one. One large black hat was trimmed with a band of silver ribbon which fell through a slit in the brim in two large loops over the right ear. Many a gracefully draped veil is used in this same manner.

In fact, this tendency of all trimming to go to the right was carried out to such an extent by one smart Parisian that she wore a long sinuous earring on the right ear only, leaving the left ear quite unadorned. It hardly seems likely that many Americans will carry this fashion to such an extreme but it does show how strong this tendency is.

However, these large hats do not as yet enjoy the popularity of the smaller one. And though they may burst into highest favor and day, it is hardly possible that the fashion will continue for long.

With the soft, dainty summer dresses the hat is usually softer, though there may be a little stiffening in the brim. It is a very charming fashion, too, to keep our suffer hats for our more tailored costume. And a soft crushed little model is so lovely with a dainty dress.

EVENING HAT TO RETURN

It is rumored that the evening hat, which has been absent so long, is returning to high favor. It is really quite a natural development when one stops to think about it. Bandeaux have been growing wider and more elaborate than ever. So some clever milliner just put a tulle top on a wide bandeau and the evening hat was in vogue. And after it had gone that far naturally little tulle brims were added. This does not mean that the bandeaux is going out. Just the opposite. For the wider and more elaborate the bandeaux that is worn with a formal frock, the smarter the costume. It just shows our tendency to wear some sort of head covering at every possible moment. This desire for headgear is certain to last while the bobbed heads are growing out, for it solves many a problem of hair dressing. And the person to whom the simple smooth style of coiffure is unbecoming—and unfortunately there are many such—is sure to follow this fashion with enthusiasm.

The Styles For 1923

The styles for 1923 may vary in many respects from those of last year, women's hats, suits, cloaks—men's suits, coats, hats—everything is decidedly different than it was the year before. Each year brings these radical changes that add to the attractiveness of one's wearing apparel.

For A Trim Ankle

The bewildering array of countless styles which are placed before us in such profusion nowadays make it possible for a woman to use so much more artistic imagination in expressing her personality as well as her taste. And of these greatly varied offerings, hosiery is far from being the least.

The plain black silk stocking which was worn for so long by the smartly and back of the neck are straight, but the lowness is achieved by having them connected over the shoulder by four or five inches or ribbon or lace strap across the shoulder. The armhole is made by an opening cut straight down under the arm for five or six inches.

Chiffon daintily hued or black is still used to make some of the most exquisite of our lingerie.

Lounging Pajamas New

The lounging pajama is the very latest creation for our more luxurious hours. It is not only beautiful, but an ideally comfortable garment in which to spend a few hours of relaxation. There are such gorgeous advocates of this fashion! Black is quite a favorite for these pajamas, though the lighter colors are by no means put in the background. Black velvet, magnificently embroidered in color or black velvet trousers with the gayest of silk jackets. The Oriental influence is clearly seen in one model with orange velvet trousers and a Persian patterned silk jacket. Exquisite silks and lustrous satins fashion another charming model.

For the women who does not care for the pajama mode, there are many daintily feminine negligees. Silk covered with chiffon and with long trailing chiffon sleeves and a low placed giraffe is a charming fashion.

With the negligee or pajama a wide matching bandeau is appropriate and so becoming.

dressed woman is scarcely ever seen nowadays. Chiffon with its fine, sheer beauty is seen whenever a plain stocking is worn, and strange as it may sound, if you wish black do not buy black. The clever woman chooses gunmetal. This shade looks black when it is worn, but it makes the hose seem much more expensively fine. And with a black frock and shoes, the effect is wholly charming. But black is the only frock with which black hose are worn. If your frock be any shade of gray or tan, the stockings should match it even when they are worn with black shoes. If your shoes are of colored suede or have suede inserts, of course, the hose much match the shoes. With a very dark dress it is far better to have the hose of a lighter shade than the frock. And these colored hose are quite correct with a black street frock. For the ideal of the mode is still the fawn colored stocking. For dressier wear the lace clock is quite the thing in chiffon, though the plain chiffon hose are appropriate at all times.

For sports wear the silk have given way to the imported English silk and wool stockings. They are much more practical for summer than the all wool and being much softer, many women find them far more comfortable.

And in such fascinating colors can these hose be found, that our ankles are going to be more charmingly clad than ever. These colors offer ample opportunity to have our hose match either our sweater or our sport frocks. For the fad for the matching of hose is carried into the world of sports.

But if you do not choose to wear these gay colors, you will look perfectly stunning if you pick out those with large diagonal checks of all shades of gray or tan. At times these silk and wool hose are clocked or else they have drop-stitch stripes. Seldom are they perfectly plain.

Of course, with the silk sports frock or sport skirts the silk hose must be worn either in white, light gray or fawn, with matching shoes. But on the golf links or tennis court, wool is the thing.

The Youthful Mode

by Muriel Mertens

How far we are removed from the day when the style for children was just a miniature of the style for their parents. And it is really quite recently that becomingly childish fashions have been developed for children. But now the mode for children has a distinct and separate existence. Of course, now and then it is influenced by the older fashions, but it does not follow them slavishly. When one thinks back just a few hundred years to the time when little girls of six or seven wore frocks which reached the floor, we realize what a long way we have traveled.

It is on this question of length that the childish mode has definitely decided to go its own way for their little frock and coats are quite as short as ever.

Party Frocks of Chiffon
When the little girl under ten goes to a party, she is quite likely to wear a frock of finely pleated rose colored chiffon with a bertha of plain chiffon edged with fur. Or she may choose a delicate pink crepe de chine with an edging of tiny ruffles and tucks. Or if she would look quite crisply smart she may choose to be clad in the most delicate of filmy blue taffeta. The younger she is the less apt is she to have any belt line on her frocks. They will just hang short and full from the shoulder. Her sleeves will be quite tiny—hardly more than caps and she is certain to favor the bateau neck.

If she is a little older her frock will have a long blouse with the belt line just at the top of the hip. When this little miss attends a party it may well be in a youthful crisp taffeta frock of a sunshiny yellow trimmed with a quaint little garland of flowers about the hips. Or if she likes the softness of chiffon she may wear a frock whose lone house is of a heavenly blue taffeta with a three-colored skirt of softly ruffled blue chiffon.

White Linen for Playtime
When the younger miss spends a glorious sunshiny morning playing on the sands or in some cool shaded wood she will be quite the fashion if she wears a white linen frock with yellow linen binding the Peter Pan collar, the short, full cap sleeves and buttoned front. This frock also hangs straight from the shoulder. With it are worn white linen bloomers to match which are also edged with yellow. All the light shades of linen are very becoming to children.

Rose, bright, yellow, green and blue linen with white linene trimmings made in this straight simple style are charming for children.

The gaily checked gingham are also very appropriate for these simple little frocks. As she grows older the young girl of under fifteen is very apt to copy her street clothes from her older sister's simplest sports attire. A straight pleated skirt, bluish checked, worn with a simple toned sweater and a white Peter Pan collar is a very suitable costume. However, if she requires something a bit dressier than this, she might have a three-piece serge suit. The dress of one model of this type has a long straight blouse with a bateau neck and a finely pleated skirt. It is worn with a straight, close fitting little jacket.

The simpler the dance frock of the girl of this age, the better dressed she is.

Green taffeta fashions just such a frock which is smocked at the waist and neckline. A bouquet of old blue and green flowers at the waist has long streamers of ribbon which reach almost to the bottom of the skirt.

For the Little Man
To clothe the young man becomingly and appropriately when he first puts aside dresses is the most difficult problem which any mother has to face. One very successful way to solve it is to let him wear a straight little suit of blue linen in which the straight knickers are fastened to the waist by a belt of white linen edged with tiny narrow ruffling. Sometimes the knickers are fastened to the top by means of large pearl buttons a couple of inches apart which pursue their way about his waist.

The smartest possible hat for a little girl is a small affair with a rounded crown and, the narrowest kind of a brim. It might well be called a stepping stone between the bonnet and the hat. Socks and flat little single strap slippers are the smartest footwear for children. Patent leather slippers for "best" and dull leather or white buckskin for their energetic hours of play.

LOW SHOES POPULAR
There is a steady trend in shoe fashions, in the youngsters as well as the older folks, to the oxford. Low shoes of strong weaving quality seem to rule the field this spring. For the little fellow there are many models in plain oxfords in black and tan.

Heavy shoes for rough use are, of course on the market, and with greater workmanship put into them and long lasting leather. For the young fellow there is a turn to the lighter weight shoe without the tan v trimming of the laces. A certain smartness is presented in the oxfords of this season that sets off the young fellow with a springy atmos-

EASTER

For The Easter Parade A New Wrap

On Easter day everything you wear should smack of newness and your Wrap most of all for it is first seen. From these attractive assortments you will have no trouble choosing. They follow Spring's favorite styles and are interestingly varied. Many Wraps owe their richness to upstanding collars of monkey fur or platinum fox while others are distinctive for cape backs and contrasting waistcoats. Gerona, Marvella and Arabia cloth are favored fabrics while batwing gray, sorrento blue and black are leading colors.

For All the Needs of Spring, You'll Find a Smart Coat Here

Smartly designed for every phase of woman's activity, these beautiful wraps and coats reflect the approved mode in every tailored line or graceful drape. Some of them are loose, swagger models, suggesting voyage, motoring or street wear. Others of the "umbrella-case" slimmest that the French approve. Blouse coat. Luxurious cape. Deep-ple fabrics. You'll love them.

It's Smart to Wear a Frock

Especially if the day turns out to be pleasantly mild a smart Frock worn perhaps with a snug choker or fur scarf beneath your chin is a most fashionable outfit. Cloth Frocks, particularly those in Elton jacket effect that almost resemble a suit are very appropriate, but not any more so than silk crepes richly embroidered.

A Bit of Neckwear Imparts the Finishing Touch Most Costumes Need

Fashions in Neckwear play to extremes. At one end they flatter a queen with filmy lace. Berthas inspired by Victoria's court. At the other they flatter the highwayman with gaudy bandanas that millady is to knot around her throat in bandit fashion. There's novelty in both and extravagance in neither for these displays present values that are unusual.

New Blouses

Catch the Magic of the ORIENT.

You see it in the color richness of their braiding and embroideries which are so exotically Persian in design. You see it in their snug hip bands that were borrowed from the Russian. It is a beauty that intrigues and mystifies. A fashion that the clever woman will be quick to make her own.

DISTINCTIVE COSTUMES

It Goes Without Saying An Easter Hat

You've chosen a new Easter bonnet most likely ever since you can remember, but we doubt whether you ever before had such a fascinating group of Hats to select from as these are. Regulating polo shapes, jaunty close fitting Hats and large dress Hats predominate.

Gay-Colored Sweaters

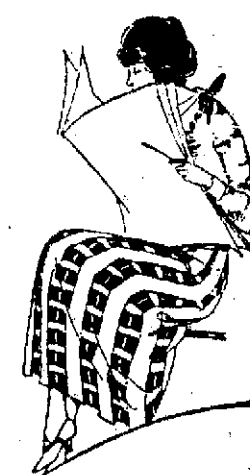

You simply must have one—they're so useful and smart for all-around wear.

Knitted in myriads of fascinating designs, unique color contrasts include all the new season's shades.

RUSSIAN BLOUSES

SLIP-OVER

For Sports SNAPPY TOGS Aplenty

The Sports costume answers unusual requirements these days. Besides lending itself to the greater outdoor activities, general picturesqueness is prevalent. Color provides the new note this season, and throughout our Sports Section you'll find evidences of shades oriental and new combined in harmonious contrast. Too, new stylings and new fabrics enhance the charm of their adaptation. Togs in many versions for your selection.

Silk Frocks for Spring Send a Printed Message

Every nook and corner of the Orient has been pilfered for the eccentric designs and gorgeous colorings that make Silk Frocks for Spring so good to look at. Some are of printed crepe de Chine with skirts that have tier upon tier of circular ruffles. Some are of patterned Roshanara, exotic in color and Egyptian in the way they are draped toward the center front. Even taffeta Frocks, slim of bodice, bouffant of skirt as in Victoria's time revel in patterned taffetas or brocades as they are called.

The Gayest Of Patterns For Spring

With the coming of spring what woman does not feel a longing for exquisitely lovely colors after the somber winter ones? The softening air and the first sunny days suggest the glorious colorings of summer. So now Dame Fashion, ever capricious and inconstant, selects new shades for her favorites. And one of the first of these is green—Lanvin green. Even the name has an enchanting sound. The color is that of soft, delicate green like fresh, unknown grass. How exquisitely refreshing it will be on the hot days to come. Green suggesting, as it does, fresh growing things and the soft shadows of trees, makes you feel and look deliciously cool. And still another favorite is Madeline rose. It is an old saying that a woman in love longs for a rose colored gown and fresh violets. Perhaps instinctively she knows how flattering is this delicately warm shade. But this summer when a riot of color is all the rage, all the light, bright shades are quite in vogue.

But these colors, instead of being in the flat tones which have predominated for so many months, are found in the most intricate and unusual designs on a neutral background. In fact, this passion for the allover design is the most distinctive characteristic of the season. Almost every fabric used is printed, beaded or embroidered over every seemingly available inch of its surface.

LONG LINES NEWEST

The gracefully becoming, long lines are still the newest—yet they are not the same, for in some subtle way we seem to grow cleverer in our ability to drape them with more artful simplicity. Oftentimes the newer frocks are caught into an elaborate tuck on the left hip—buckles of strangely wrought gold or clear, gleaming crystal or richly colored stones. At other times they are caught into knots of the material, forming a little draping on that side.

SIMPLICITY IN FROCKS

An evening frock of the approved Greek simplicity which is most becoming to the slender figure has a deep "V" neck in the front and back. The frock hangs straight but both the back and front are draped into a huge pearl ornament on the left hip. From this ornament hang long strands of pearls which almost reach the ground. Underneath this ornament the skirt opens to show the gleaming silver of an underskirt. It is in clever ways like this that the long, straight lines are made possible for dancing or walking without the graceless, mincing step of the too tight skirt.

MODES OF AFTERNOON FROCKS

It is on the glorious sunny days of summer when one watches the sunlight sparkling on the waves and the yellow sands or spends a deliciously lazy afternoon in the cool shadows of the country club porch, that the season shows her loveliest interpretations of the mode for afternoon frocks. It is on just such an occasion that one will be permitted to see a beautiful little georgette frock, made quite simply with a light blouse and a little draping at the side, where the material falls in a point just below the hem line. But it will owe its smartness to the myriad beads which gleam and glisten on its soft, dull surface. Perhaps this frock will be sleeveless for the sleeveless afternoon frock is quite the rage, but it will be just as much in fashion if its whimsical wearer happens to prefer a little short, tight sleeve or one of those wing-like extensions which have recently been serving as sleeves.

SILK CREPE FROCKS SHOWN

If one wanders further on such a day, one is certain to meet one of those gaily patterned silk crepe frocks. It is in these frocks that the mode fully expresses its present love of color in strange interwoven designs. These allover patterns are on a white or neutral background, but the brightest, gaudiest colors lend their decorative touch to the intricate traceries of the design.

VOILE FOR SULTRY WEATHER

The cool freshness of voile is so alluring on sultry days, so if you choose you can express the mood charmingly in a frock of voile quite as brilliantly figured as the silk ones. Other dainty little frocks achieve this same effect by having the figures embroidered.

It is not in the least surprising that the coat frock is a very great favorite again, for it would be difficult to conceive of anything either more stunning or more practical. However, they have certain marked differences from the coat frock we wore last year.

Now and again one sees a slender little miss with a graceful circular skirt, but more often the skirt is straight with first a circular flare introduced into it. One charming coat frock of serge has a circular flare of crepe set in at the closing of the frock. This is not only smart, but extremely practical as it gives freedom for walking without destroying the straight one-piece effect. The wide rever which covers almost the entire front of the waist is of this same crepe.

UNUSUAL AND VARIED SLEEVE

But doubtless the most cleverly varied and unusual part of the afternoon frock is its sleeve. The long, tight sleeve is the greatest favorite of the coat frock. But it must never be a plain, tight sleeve. Far from it. Over some long, slender hand will fall a circular cuff reaching to the knuckles. Or in a gay cavalier fashion this circular cuff will be turned back forming a gauntlet. Then another tight sleeve admiring this gauntlet fashion will assume three gauntlets whose combined efforts almost reach the elbow. Or a favored way is to have three circular flares turned down the top one a few inches below the elbow and the lowest one falling over the hand. The sleeve of the satin or chiffon frock may start out to be long and tight, but at the elbow it is very apt to change its mind and end by being full and flowing, quite as fashionably, however, it may be a full flowing sleeve straight from the shoulder.

The three-piece suit is still in high favor for spring. It is such a convenient and becoming costume, particularly for afternoon, when one drops into a restaurant for tea or goes calling. The lovely blouses which peep forth as one opens the jacket make really a very dressy costume, appropriate for almost any and every function of the afternoon.

An almost limitless choice is offered your fancy when you are choosing the blouses for one of these suits. If your taste inclines to the Oriental, a blouse of Persian patterned silk will suit the mode as well as your personality. Of course, it will be long, wasted, cut to fit snugly about the hips or gathered into a tightly fitted band.

Now and again a button cleverly placed will hold the jacket so snugly about the hips that it has a tendency toward a slight blouse or perhaps it would be quite frankly a little blouse and gathered into a tight band at the hips. With these jackets the line of the skirt is straight. There may be a little draping at one side, but not a circular flare.

VARIATIONS IN THESE SUITS

As often as not the three-piece suit consists of a dress instead of a skirt and a costume blouse.

Whether you golf or whether you motor or whether you are just an intercast spectator in the sidelines of sports, of course, you are wearing sport clothes. For the sports costume, which year by year has been becoming more and more popular, has reached the topnotch of fashion and is just the thing to be worn almost every hour of the day. It may be because we are more keen for sports, it may be the effect of the over-present country club, but surely one great reason is its youthful dash and smartness. It is so unusually becoming to every age and type.

The Jaquette or overblouse which was worn so much last season is here in a new form for sports. Fashioned of various novelty cotton materials, all vividly figured, or of colorful rayon, they did fair to be in high favor for a morning on the links.

Among the newest sweaters, for the women actively engaged in sports are rather mannish ones. Many of these are checked in a tiny diamond shape pattern with a plain border or sometimes with plain sleeves also.

Of course, the high round neck sweater is still very good. And even more daintily original are the strange designs which encircle it. In addition to the American Indian designs there are now and even more gorgeously elaborate figures. The slip-on sweaters also show the allover diamond-shape checks. But whatever kind of a sweater you choose, one thing is certain—if you are slim it must be bettless.

FINELY PLEATED KASHA CLOTH

There is a little grace about finely pleated Kasha cloth, which makes it particularly suitable for our more active hours. In white, gray or a soft tan, worn with the vividly patterned blouses or sweaters, it makes a costume which will be seen frequently at the most fashionable country clubs. And as beautifully lined as the rainbow are the figured silk crepe skirts, fashion's latest creation. Of course, these are particularly lovely with the new single-tone blouses. The new wool or silk-and-wool skirts are severely distinguished by unusual button hole loops and pockets, and now and then drawn work.

HANDKERCHIEF COMPLETES WARDROBE

But no mention of the sports costume is even half begun until one has heard all about the handkerchief—for in all verity it has seized the most important place in our wardrobe. The more gaudily colored these silk handkerchiefs—for that is the handkerchief's newest form—the smarter they are. Some are tied loosely about the neck in true cowboy fashion with the knot in front or on the shoulder.

The Most Popular of All Classifications

Of the 63 classifications by which WANT ADS are classified these two are perhaps the most thoroughly read. The first ad may offer an automatic rifle, the next ladies' suit, or a typewriter. The variety of things that are offered in these two classifications reaches from needles to airplanes. WANT AD BARGAIN WEEK should make these two classifications the most interesting they have ever been.

Do You Need Help or a Position

You will find that in either case The Post-Crescent Want Ad page is a most resourceful means of finding what you want—help or a position. If you have a job perhaps you can find a better one—read the Want Ads. If you have a full force in your shop—office or store, perhaps some of them are inefficient; a Want Ad will put you in touch with some one who is efficient.

Services Offered

A great many people depend entirely on their ad in the Services Offered column to find work for them. Usually the people who use this column want work that is termed as odd jobs—a bit of painting or carpenter work or plastering or weaving or any of a hundred and-one little jobs that need trained people to perform. The results that these people get from their ads are most pleasing to them as it gives them a means of earning a living at work which they like to do.

Men "Blossom out" in new Spring Styles

BY OTTO A. ENGEL

Simplification seems to rule the men's clothing industry — simplification in style, in fabric and in pattern. Conservatism, with few variations, appears to have the call this spring and summer.

The jazz models, which made such a hurrah last year, and which went strong in some sections of the country, but were rejected in other parts, apparently passed the height of popularity and now are on the down grade. While a few makers, who were successful in putting out the jazz output, will continue along these lines, the better manufacturers have turned down these styles almost completely.

There will, however, be shown a variety of these freakish styles, but the production is so small that it is almost insignificant. No doubt the death knell has been rung.

THREE VARIATIONS NOTED

Two distinct variations—possibly three—will be noted in the new styles for young men. The ultra dresser will wear very fitted models. High waist, high gorge, that is a short collar, high lapel, high chest effect, slim waist, long vent and long appearing spurs are the principal features. The effect of the longer skirts makes the coat appear longer, which is not the case, as the length is about the average.

Rope shoulders also will be noteworthy characteristics on clothes of this type. Some coats are made with a high outside cash pocket. There will be both notch and peak lapels, but the lapels will be shorter, much shorter than in the past seasons. Two and three buttons will be used.

COLLEGE TYPE OF CLOTHES

Next comes the college type of clothes, which will be of softer construction than heretofore, with low collars, short lapels, single breasted, rounding fronts, three and four-button coats, worn unbuttoned. The three-button coat seems to have the call.

This coat is of the same dimensions as the four, except that the buttons are spaced wider. Vests are cut straighter across the bottom, and the trousers are also cut straight, that is, the same size at both knee and bottom and worn with cuff.

The third style idea concerns that group known as "regular" young men's models. The coats are semi-fitted, with two and three buttons, both single and double breasted. The rope shoulders will be a prominent feature of these clothes. The vest to these suits will also show a tendency to be cut a little lower at the opening and straighter at the bottom.

TROUSERS CUT STRAIGHT

Such suits will also display trousers cut straight. Some, however, those from the best makers—are regular in shape, but there is an outlet on both inside and outside seams, permitting alteration, in the event the customer wants them wide from the knee down.

The sport styles, which came in stronger than ever last year, promise to continue in favor with good dressers, particularly the four-piece suits. Such suits are adaptable for both business and sports wear. The business man may wear the suit with the long trousers in going to the office and can change to knickerbockers at the golf club, if he so desires.

BELTS AND PLEATS AGAIN

Half and three-quarter belts are winning the greatest vote, while spring pleats, like those worn in regular golf suits, also are favored by a certain clientele. There are many variations of the sport styles and all of them have a following.

Patch pockets and plain pockets will be seen on the majority of the suits, while the crescent pocket, which had a quiet play several years ago is regarded as a back number.

In patterns, stripes have become almost as staple as the Chesterfield is in the overcoat family. Stripes in shades of blue, oxfords and grays will be more noticeable than ever. That fact that most of the fabrics in which stripes appear are light in weight makes clothes made of such fabrics, wearable almost twelve months of the year, and hence there is an added reason for their success.

CHECKS TO HAVE FOLLOWING

Checks, which came into vogue several years ago with a rush, will have a large following and many of these patterns will be found among the sport suits, as well as among the more conservative styles. Shepherd plaids, herringbones in blue, brown and gray stripes, Glen Uquard, Tartan checks and overplaid will command a large following.

Despite the fact that diamond weaves were shown more than ever last season, makers are coming forth with another selection of them this year in the hope of forcing popularity. It is rather questionable whether men will see such patterns as the thing for spring.

PALM BEACH IN LEAD

Palm Beach promises to lead the procession in midsummer fabrics, as in other years. The cheapness of such material, together with improved styles has helped put this fabric across with greater force than ever. For a time Palm Beach cloth was on the wane, but better makers secured this fabric, put their skilled journey-men to work and turned out unusually fine clothes.

The increasing vogue of discarding the heavier woolen suits for something light and airy has also helped other cool weather fabrics. Among them are mohairs, homespun, light weight flannels, crashes, rich pongees, shantung, together with a long list of fabrics possessing special coined named.

The topcoat for spring will show a leaning toward the box of full drapes, with set in sleeves. Then, too, the topcoat with the raglan shoulders, forty-four inches long, with belt all around also will win great favor. The first coat mentioned will be shown in both button through and fly front. The third group consists of the always present Chesterfield.

In raincoats, the popular gabardine leads, the field, in plain or belted models.

HABERDASHERY ON THE CALENDAR FOR SPRING

by
OTTO ENGEL

4-SUP-23

While there is a tendency to slightly higher prices for men's haberdashery this spring, the advance is partially offset by better quality merchandise. Prices have reached the point of stabilization and the weird fluctuations of war days and post-war days are a thing of the past.

During the halcyon days the cost of men's accessories was just about twice that of today. The $25 shirt, for example, may be purchased for $12 or $13. Neckwear marked at $2 is now down to $1.50 and the range of prices is correspondingly lowered throughout.

White Silk Shirts Popular
While the silk shirt has been making desperate efforts to regain its war-day popularity, the march of progress has been quite slow in the last two years. The white silk shirts will lead the field, of course, but there is a tendency for plain colored silks to come back in some of the more durable weaves. Among them are baby broadcloths and jerseys. Pleated effects also promise to have a large call.

Madras, oxford cloth and the better grades of cotton shirts, particularly the English broadcloths, will be worn extensively. While the prices are a shade higher than a year ago, the workmanship is so improved that it borders on the custom tailored variety.

Good Selections of Fiber Silks
There always will be a demand for the better fiber silk shirts, largely due to the fact that they offer a selection that good dressers like—at prices that do not tax one's income. The collar-attached shirt which reached the height of popularity last year will go ahead with greater advancement than ever, if the prediction of makers is correct. In this special line there is a greater variety than ever, giving the customer a wider scope of selection. And one of the pleasing features is the fact that the workmanship has improved wonderfully—truly making this a gentleman's shirt.

Then, too, there will be shown more shirts with two button cuff bands, although the French cuff still leads the procession. Flannel shirts will have quite a following, especially among those dressers who prefer the sort of flannel coming from England and France.

Gay Effects in Neckwear
In neckwear the subdued color effect of sombre winter will give way to the vari-colored selection that usually blossoms forth in the spring. Silks from foreign fields—England, France, Switzerland and the far eastern countries—have flooded the market, but they are made up in the American styles and fashions. Among some of the shapes are the narrow cravats, adapted for the smaller collars which have become the popular vogue for warmer weather wear. Because of their serviceability and durability, grenadines and knitted ties will be worn with greater frequency than ever. Many interesting and novel effects have been produced giving the wearer a variety in selection that has never been offered before.

Matching some of the suit patterns will be tweed effects, which promises to "go across" with great demand. Foreign foulards also will come to the front stronger than ever.

Few Changes in Hosiery
Because of the limitation, hosiery will undergo few changes this year. Good silks, with clocks and other novel designs, particularly the full-fashioned selection, will be as popular as ever. For early spring cassimeres, camel's hair and imported worsteds will get the big play. Naturally there will be a good selection of silk accordeons and embroidered effects, but the showing promises to be only normal. As for colors the shades and tones of each will be about the same as last season. There have been very few changes

When Straw Meets Felt

BY A. MECON HARM

Men's hats for spring showing have undergone but slight changes from the styles shown and worn last spring, although there is an evident tendency toward the conservative type.

The hat problem is a very perplexing one to the woman because of the rapid and almost overnight change in modes worn, which added to the regular seasonal variations keep them in constant dread to the milliner. Men, on the contrary find but little variation in hats with the exception of the seasonal changes which come not for style but to give the wearer the latest in comfort. With the advent of each season new thoughts for the wearer's comforts are added to those already in vogue until one is prone to wonder when the end will come.

Light colors will again lead the field in spring hats. Tans will predominate with peery grays and light green following closely. Bands to correspond will be the prevailing mode. The shapes are virtually the same as those in vogue last year. The Fedora and Alpine shapes are being shown extensively in the older men's hats, while the young fellows will turn to the diamond-shaped and dented in styles—all these, however, in very light weights. Few old shapes are being shown, the majority having a medium crown and brim.

Straws More Conservative
Straws for summer wearing are following in the footsteps of all other men's wearing apparel—holding fast to the conservative and less freakish type of a few years ago.

The light sailor is again slated for a big run. These will come in pure rough straws and loose weaves in whites, light browns and tans. The very light weights are being shown very much. For the most part plain blank bands or bands to contrast to the color of the hat will be worn with a sprinkling of the colored bands in stripes and dots.

Plain or pattern effects of madras, percales, crepes, chambrays, seersuckers and fiber silk will be among the fabrics in vogue.

Would You Change Places with your Ancestors?

If we, of today, were to find ourselves suddenly deprived of modern electrical conveniences, and were forced to depend upon the crude implements of our ancestors—what a sorry time we would have.

The twentieth century has seen the dawn of an electrical age. Electricity, an invisible, powerful force, harnessed to the wheels of industry and made to take its place in the household scheme of things; has converted the gloom of night into the radiance of mid-day. It has annihilated distance and revolutionized communication. In the home it has eliminated drudgery, administered to the comfort of the sick, and made possible a cleaner, quicker, more sanitary preparation of foods thru electrical cooking.

The Way Today is the Electrical Way

Illumination

Primitive Man crouched in his gloomy cave; had but a flickering fire brand to light his habitation. Then there came to man, as he progressed, the tallow dip, then the first crude lantern and later the more efficient lamp. Today we enjoy the radiance of the BRILLIANT WESTINGHOUSE MAZDA — fruit of progressive science.

Communication

News traveled slowly in the days of our ancestors. Couriers on horseback labored slowly over tortuous paths to carry news from one point to another. Later came a shortening of distance by means of steam vehicles. Progress in time developed the telephone, telegraph, aeroplane—and last, time and distance has almost been eliminated thru the use of that wonder invention of the age — THE RADIO.

For House Cleaning

Twigs bound together constituted the broom of pioneer days, later the carpet sweeper made its appearance. TODAY the housewife keeps her home clean and sanitary with an AMERICA ELECTRIC VACUUM SWEEPER.

Hot Applications for the sick room

Heated bricks wrapped in cloths and hot water bottles were the means of applying heat as a remedial progress yesterday. Today Electrical Science has provided the HOLDHEAT ELECTRIC HEATING PAD, ready to use on the instant, — and maintaining the same degree of heat as long as desired.

For Your Ironing

The old Sad Iron is fast becoming obsolete. The modern ELECTRIC IRON is a fixture in all progressive homes.

Milady's Hair Curling

The old fashioned Iron hair curler and kid curlers belong to the relics of the past. A few moments time with a HOLDHEAT ELECTRIC HAIR CURLER and the woman of today has finished a task that her grandmother spent many hours at.

Milady's Hair Drying

She used to waste precious time trying to dry hair setting in the sun or fanning it with a newspaper or fan. Today she turns a switch and in a few moments the ELECTRIC HAIR DRYER, with its current of hot and cold air has dried her hair thoroughly.

Heating Methods

The original American, the Indian, heated his flimsy wigwam by means of a smoky wood fire. In his steps came the white pioneer with his stonefire. Wood, gas and kerosene heaters have all had their day. The safe, odorless ELECTRIC HEATER is found in the best homes of today.

Cooking Methods

Primitive man toasted his meat with a forked twig over a wood fire—later bread was toasted in the same way. Then bread was toasted by laying it on top of a stove. Came gas toasters, a distinct improvement over the old methods.

Modern man sits down to breakfast of golden brown toast, made on a HOLDHEAT ELECTRIC TOASTER and sips steaming hot, fragrant coffee made with a HOLDHEAT ELECTRIC PERCOLATOR.

LOOK IT! SPRING Styles IN BOYS' CLOTHES

by Raymond S. Schutte

40-SUP-23

"Ma, get me a suit like the one Jerry got, will you? I don't want any of that kid stuff, because I'm getting too old, now."

The young fellow of today—the "camping, husky" boy—will not have to say this to his mother this year, because the suits, clothes are offering this spring surely make the young fellow look like a man. And rightly, too, because he's beginning to take on a serious atmosphere in his school life and his social functions.

Every boy has his father before him as the ideal of manhood and so he wants to be like him, and to accommodate him father has even compromised and let his styles come down to such a place that models are very, very similar.

TENDENCY TO PLAINER STYLES

For the high school lad manufacturers have prepared some stunning and sensible clothes. The "freak" styles will, of course, be worn by the young fellow who wants to be eccentric and out-of-the-ordinary, but the suits offered this spring have such beautiful lines and are fashioned so perfectly that there will be no desire for these models with frills and odd little trimmings all over.

When the young man steps into those first trousers he wants to lose all the specialties of the short pants suits; he wants to look like Dad, so he looks for the plain fashioned garments. These he will find in beautiful stripes which will be the popular vogue this spring, and a varied selection of tweeds—which will run a good second to the stripes.

JUVENILES DEMAND STYLE

Even the little fellows of knicker age are becoming "funcky" about their styles and, they, too, have come in for a share of the manufacturer's cunning. The clothes this spring will certainly make the younger boys "feel like a million dollars."

They have all the fineness that the garment maker puts into the men's clothes, the rugged wearing qualities—which, of course, mother looks for—just to make, not only the little wearer feel proud, but to make Dad look at his boy with thoughts of "I wish I had clothes like that when I was a kid."

Norfolk will naturally be the prevailing model for the boys, but they'll come in many, many attractive varieties. However, they will all have one thing in common, the ever prevailing belt, yoke backs, pants, box and knife pleats as well as plain or patch pockets.

FOR THE LITTLE FELLOW

Wash middies get the call this year for the little fellow. Garment makers all over the country and in every line are realizing the great value of putting practicability into their products. They have never been so lavish with it as they are this year in the wearing apparel for the little ones.

Fabrics of the strongest material have been used for the wash suits and middies, in very attractive colors and designs—just the thing for the study boy who romps and plays—and would just as leave tear a lace suit as well as any other.

The Oliver Twist and Tommy Tucker suits are being shown in many models as well as many one-piece suits with washable, sateen waists and black and dark colored straight pants.

LITTLE CHANGE IN HEADWEAR

There is little change in the style of headwear for the juveniles this year, although hats to match the suits of wash fabrics are becoming predominant. These are all in fast colors and washable, too—again illustrating the practical thoughts of the manufacturer.

For the older boys caps of fine woolen fabrics, in the light spring colors will be the vogue. Caps of tweed materials are also very evident, due to the demand for sport clothes of tweed material. The one-piece large tip cap seems to be the thing. Hats in light greens and tans will be worn for dressy affairs.

Taberdashery has undergone but slight changes, with a trend to the silk ties, plain and pin striped shirts—with collar attached—and a slightly higher collar. The greatest change seems to be in shirts with a heavy predominance for the collar attached shirt in all mild colors. Silks are due to be worn more, but the day of the wide stripe is gone and manufacturers are turning to the conservatively colored, pin striped or white silk shirts.

The Buckled Foot of Fashion

35-SUP-23

Nowadays one of the first dictates of fashion is becomingness, so it is sometimes hard to lay down any hard and fast rule about what "they" will wear and what "they" will not wear. The wise woman adapts the style to her type and gives little individual variations which make our costumes so much more interesting.

So if one should say that every slipper must have a buckle, the next day one might see the smartest of slippers unadorned. However, if any rule could be laid down with absolute finality, it would be that slippers must be buckled.

We dress so much more artistically nowadays—particularly in regard to our footwear. A smart frock is never really charming unless everything else really goes with it. So in the clever choosing of our footwear we change a gown into a complete costume.

For Evening Wear

The most elaborate and strikingly beautiful silk brocades are the newest materials for the evening slipper. And the effect of these vari-colored, rich looking slippers below a simply cut frock is really unusually beautiful. Many shades are to be seen mingling in each slipper, but the predominating tone matches or, at any rate, harmonizes with the frock. Gold or silver kid frequently forms the heels and the trimming of these slippers, but as often as not the slipper is entirely of the brocade.

However popular these slippers may be, gold or silver cloth, either plain or brocaded is still seen to fashion the slippers for many of the smartest.

As for the cut of the evening slipper, your choice is practically unlimited. Some have tiny straps which seem to almost wind themselves about the ankle, while the plain slipper is very new.

Buckles of Beauty

The plain slipper relies entirely upon an elaborate crystal buckle for its adornment. And so magnificent and so large are these buckles that it needs no more. And large as they are, the newest thought is to have them made even larger by putting behind them a fluted or ruffled tongue of the material. One slipper even had such a tongue composed of tiny colored feathers.

The buckle for the strap slipper is much smaller and set on the strap just at the top of the instep. Another way is to have the buckle placed at the fastening. But one thing is certain, whatever style the slipper may be, the heel is sure to be very high.

Afternoon Slippers

The smartest afternoon slippers first make sure that the toe is of patent leather. After that countless variations of style are offered them. They may be all of patent leather. But probably they will have inserts of some colored suede—usually some shade of tan or gray. When these colors are chosen to harmonize with the frock, the result is an extremely smart costume. The cut steel buckle is the one which is used with these and, in fact, all afternoon slippers.

The all-suede slipper, while not the newest, is still in very good style. Sometimes they yield to the vogue of patent leather by having a patent leather heel and binding next to the sole. Or perhaps the patent leather will be found as a saddle strap.

For Street Wear

For walk and for wear with a street frock, the low heeled strap slipper of a combination of suede and black leather helps to make a stunning costume. One model which is very good is of suede with black leather toes and heels and a black leather strap holds close to the foot a large tongue of suede. Of course, if you choose a low heeled walking oxford you will make no mistake—particularly if that oxford be of a suede and leather combination.

For the soft shimmering frock of some lazy summer afternoon, the dainty white slipper of kid, buckskin or linen is the appropriate finish.

When these afternoon slippers have straps they are piped now and then in some bright colored kid.

With the sports costume the buckskin oxford with a leather saddle strap will be most frequently seen.

The idea of cutting down on the number of styles has reduced the task of both manufacturer and retailer. As a result both are in a happier frame of mind, as "leftovers" have been cut down to the minimum.

The vari-colored tops and the two-toned effects of past seasons have been shelved for the time being with little promise of a return for a long long time to come.

Naturally, there will be a few freakish lasts to satisfy some extraordinary whim, but such footwear is far in the minority. Black lowers with tan or brown uppers have gone into the discard, while the single-toned shoe or oxford will lead the van.

Cordovan leather, which once was the vogue, also has taken a back seat, despite its wonderful quality of service and durability. The non-porous condition of this leather is said to have been the cause of much foot trouble. But the cordovan shades, however, will be retained, as they found popularity among the younger men.

Dark browns promise to get quite a play this spring and summer, but there, too, will be the lighter tan shades. Blacks, of course, will have quite a following, as will coco-brown, mahogany, russet and Havana brown.

Gunmetal finishes will go strong as usual, with vinyl kid and glossier finishes second in the race for popularity.

The narrow English custom toe last, and the medium ball shapes will continue in favor among the younger fellows, while the wider and more comfortable lasts, with plenty of toe room, are for the older men, who prefer to sacrifice style to comfort.

Brogues will be worn extensively, but the winged tips and perforated toes will drop off a bit in general appeal.

Spats for the ultra dresser will continue in favor and the colors will be much like last year, when tans, grays, fawns, browns and buck sold in the majority.

When Old Sol beats his fiercest the canvas oxfords will come forth strong. The Palm Beach shades will be worn more extensively than the white. White bucks will have the call for formal affairs.

Spring Footwear

Milady who here presents some very attractive footwear styles for Spring, reminds us that since skirts are a trifle shorter and there's a preference being shown for lighter colored shoes of grey, Footwear is assuming such costume prominence that smartly dressed women are making great haste to be fashionably shod.

SPRING EXPOSITION

March 12th to 17th

ONE IS ONLY FANTASTICAL WHO IS NOT IN FASHION. We do not make our fashions in Appleton. We can but follow the best styles of which the world has approved. The Styles of Spring are so intriguing, and so becoming, that following them will be a delightful experience. The Spring Exposition of 1923 establishes Appleton as a Fashion Center. The Spring Pageant and Style Revue is the imposing feature of this week. The authentic fashion exhibits of the Spring Exposition give Appleton shoppers the opportunities of the large cities.

New Suits

In Which Coats Are Important

ASUIT may be in the conservative two piece styles—or in the new costume effects. The jacket is ever of major importance. It is usually short—and ties at the side. For dress wear, suits come in twill cords, in purl twills, and in traversine. Navy blue is always a smart shade. Light grays and tans are also favored. Sport suits use camel's hair cloths and imported mixtures. Suits are $40., $45., $50. and upwards.

The bolero and little boxed coat that ties on the hip are two new suit whimsies. Boleros are smartest of all when they are part of three piece costume suits, and the frocks underneath have long bodies of printed silks. The coats have horizontal fronts—a suggestion of a surplice.

Barley and cinder are two very smart shades for Spring. Shoes and hosiery as well as frocks, suits and wraps share this color popularity.

New Frocks

Many a Mode is of Oriental Mood

EGYPT has exerted a powerful influence on many dress styles this Spring. The lines are simple—which lends infinite grace. The restrained use of ornament is confined to rich notes that add a great deal. Hem lines are again straight. Flat crepes are the favored dress fabrics of Spring. Elizabeth crepe is a new member of this group. Sleeves are shorter for afternoon wear—and in formal dresses, sleeves have disappeared. $27. upwards.

Braid and ribbon are two very trim methods by which flaring suits coats attain elaboration. Braided designs are very intricate, and many form wide borders. Ribbon simply binds spots, modes, or fine platings of it trim dressy modes.

The long, tight fitting sleeve is stylish. Bell or peal-like continuations reach to the knuckles. Arm holes are in most cases back to normalcy.

Springtime Wraps

In Graceful Styles for Every Occasion

Graceful wraps for dress wearing are moulded to fall becomingly from the shoulders. Generous collars huddle around the throat. Like suit jackets—new wraps have a habit of fastening at the side. They are made of fine pile materials—Geron, Marcova, Juna, Lustrosa and Veldyne. $55., $65., $75. and upwards.

The Fascinating Details

Hats

SUCH wonderful new hats are shown this Spring! Many of the hats to be displayed next week come from prominent designers. Smart modes are shown from Belart, Philmont, Kibel, and Warshauer. They are naturally the most correct hats to be had.

Clever little sport hats of felt are blocked in fetching shapes. Soft pastel colors are brightened with trimmings of Paisley bands and bandings. $6.50.

Sports

COATS AND SUITS for sports use favor light shades. Camel's hair and polaire are the most favored materials, English mixtures are very much worn, too. Unusual effectiveness is brought to tan materials by barred patterns in black or brown.

A distinctive coat of camel's hair is made in a flared model. Against a background of natural camel, are striking bars of deep black.
